Ford Considers Tax Cut Extension

By CARL P. LEUBSDORF
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Democratic congressional leaders plan to push for an extension of the antirecession tax cuts enacted this year, a move that President Ford says he would consider if the economy fails to rebound.

The Democratic leaders hope to combine the extension with a sweeping overhaul of the nation's tax laws, key party strategists say.

They outlined this plan after President Ford told a nationally televised and broadcast news conference Wednesday evening he would consider asking Congress to extend this year's reductions through the 1976 election year if the economy fails to rebound quickly enough.

The Democratic reaction, in effect, was that Ford was endorsing a plan already on the congressional drawing boards.

"There never was any doubt about it," said a House source, noting the federal budget adopted by Congress last month assumed extension of many provisions in the $22.9-billion tax cut bill enacted in March, though not the $8.1 billion rebate of 1974 taxes.

A Senate source, meanwhile, disclosed that this year's reduction was limited to a single year in part to insure that an extension would have to be enacted later in the year at a time when broader tax revision measures are ready for consideration.

These revisions could include an array of complicated and controversial items including tax treatment of capital gains and losses and the many provisions that are aimed at giving special benefits to specific groups or individuals.

The presidential news conference, held in 92-degree heat on the South Lawn of the White House, produced a series of questions that sought — but failed — to pin the President down on whether the United States would use nuclear weapons, either to strike first at a potential aggressor or to defend South Korea in the event of an attack from the North.

"I don't think it is appropriate for me to discuss in a press conference what our utilization will be of our tactical or strategic weapons," Ford said. "This is a matter that has to be determined if and when there are any requirements for our national interests."

In response to the specific question about Korea, Ford refused to confirm or deny that nuclear weapons would be used, declaring "we have the forces and they will be used in our national interest, as they should be."

On other subjects, Ford said:

—He has found after an investigation that the Soviets "have not violated" the Strategic Arms Limitation Treaty on limiting offensive and defensive missile systems, a statement promptly challenged by Sen. Henry M. Jackson, D-Wash., as "an apology for recent Soviet behavior" in deploying additional offensive missiles.

—Some recent compromises have been achieved in the European Security Conference and "there may be some others achieved that would permit a summit this summer in Helsinki."

—He will formally announce his 1976 presidential candidacy "very shortly" and, asked about possible Republican opposition, replied, "I never predicate my own plans on what somebody else will do" but instead will run his own campaign on his record.

—The recent increase in his own popularity ratings in opinion polls "is a reflection of the fact that we have had a consistently strong policy, domestically" and reflects "some of the hard

Even With $55 Million, Irving Would Be Broke!

NEW YORK (AP) — His assets include a typewriter worth $35, a tape recorder worth $50, a camera worth $75 and an auto valued at $100. But author Clifford Irving, who along with his wife went to jail for faking an autobiography of Howard Hughes, says it's not enough to cover his debts — $55,884,248.01.

Irving's attorneys filed an application for voluntary bankruptcy Wednesday in Brooklyn Federal Court, listing assets of $410 and the bulk of his liabilities as a $55 million libel suit pending in U.S. District Court in Manhattan. The suit was filed by Fernand Legros, an artist who was the subject of an earlier Irving book entitled "Fake."

Other liabilities include $344,899 Irving still owes publishers McGraw-Hill, who bought the fake Hughes book on the assumption that Irving and Hughes cooperated in the work; $140,000 in income taxes and $192,476 in legal fees. Irving said he also owns a "worthless" sailboat on the Spanish island of Ibiza, where his wife, Edith, is living with their two children.

INDIRA GANDHI ARRESTS FOES

Emergency Declared To Ward Off Civil Disobedience Campaign

By MYRON L. BELKIND
Associated Press Writer
NEW DELHI, India (AP) — Prime Minister Indira Gandhi proclaimed a state of emergency in India today, and her government arrested more than 100 political opponents in an attempt to ward off a nationwide civil disobedience campaign against her refusal to resign.

The government also imposed censorship on outgoing news dispatches as well as on all publication within the country. Procedures for censorship of reports being sent abroad were not immediately announced.

Some newspapers were not being distributed, either because power supplies were cut off or because copies were confiscated.

It was the biggest roundup of political dissidents since 1942, when the British arrested Mohandas Gandhi and other leaders of the Free India Movement because they, too, were waging a civil disobedience campaign.

Among those reported arrested today were 71-year-old Jayaprakash Narayan, an elder statesman of the Indian independence movement and for months one of Mrs. Gandhi's most severe critics; Raj Narain, the Socialist politician whose challenge of her 1971 election victory resulted in the present crisis; Asoka Mehta, the leader of the Old Congress party which broke away from Mrs. Gandhi in 1969; and two leading critics in her own ruling Congress party, Ram Dhan, a general secretary, and Chandra Sekhar, who urged her to open a dialogue with Narayan.

The crackdown was launched after Mehta announced the start Sunday of a "nationwide struggle" to drive Mrs. Gandhi from office, with rallies and demonstrations throughout the country leading up to a civil disobedience campaign of the kind her father, Jawaharlal Nehru, and Mohandas Gandhi employed against the British.

Mrs. Gandhi's opponents first called for her resignation after a trial court convicted her on June 12 of illegally using government officials in her 1971 campaign for Parliament against Narain and barred her from elective office for six years, the mandatory sentence under the corrupt practices act.

Mrs. Gandhi refused to quit because the trial judge stayed the sentence for 20 days so she could appeal to the Supreme Court. With the Supreme Court in recess until mid-July, one of the justices ruled Tuesday that she could continue as prime minister until her appeal was decided by the full court, which will take several months. But he refused her the full stay of sen-

School Strike Bill Faces Veto Threat

By MALCOLM JOHNSON

Associated Press Writer

LANSING, Mich. (AP) — Gov. William Milliken attacked House-passed school strike legislation on Wednesday, declaring he would veto the measure because it fails to discourage walkouts by teachers.

The governor said the measure must be amended in the Senate and then in the House before it earns his signature.

"Instead of discouraging strikes, a primary effect of the House bill would be to encourage them," Milliken said.

The veto threat came as the Senate Labor Committee was to review the bill.

The House measure permits teacher strikes of up to five weeks. Teachers could be paid for three weeks if they lost time were made up at the end of the school year.

The threat of the veto is intended to win compromises from the majority Democrats. The tactic was used with partial success by Milliken in a recent dispute over increased unemployment benefits.

House Speaker Bobby Crim, D-Davison, said the governor should have become involved in the school strike issue sooner.

"I want to see his alternative," Crim said. "He sits and waits until we pass a bill and doesn't get involved. I don't like that."

Milliken said in a statement: "There are some good points in the bill, but they are outweighed by the bad ones."

He said he cannot accept it unless lawmakers add amendments already rejected in the House.

The amendments would allow teachers to strike for only two weeks, and would impose economic penalties on both teachers and school districts during any walkout.

Milliken said the current bill "would condone a three-week

Senate Okays Another Malpractice Bill

By MALCOLM JOHNSON

Associated Press Writer

LANSING, Mich. (AP) — One of the last major pieces of medical malpractice legislation, a bill authorizing arbitration of malpractice claims, was approved Wednesday by the state Senate.

The Senate approved the bill 31-1 and returned it to the House. The measure would permit patients to arbitrate instead of going to court should they seek damages for shoddy medical treatment. The bill puts no limits on the damages they could collect.

Final House passage is expected after agreement on minor amendments.

The measure is one in a series designed to solve the malpractice insurance problem, which includes skyrocketing insurance premiums, reduced availability of insurance and questionable practices by doctors trying to avoid suits.

Already passed is a measure establishing a state fund to provide insurance for all doctors, and other laws requiring extensive reporting from the medical community, continuing education, peer review and other measures.

The latest bill is designed to reduce "nuisance suits," hasten the resolution of legitimate cases and make final decisions more fair, all of which hopefully will stabilize premiums.

Insurance Commissioner Daniel Demlow says his department could implement the new procedure two or three months after it passes the legislature.

However, experts have cautioned that the effectiveness of the bill may not be apparent for many years.

Sen. Daniel Cooper, D-Oak Park, cast the only nay vote on the bill after the Senate rejected amendments which would have extended the period in which a patient could revoke the arbitration right.

Any claim would be heard by a three-member panel — an attorney, a doctor and a layman.

Arbitration costs would be paid by the doctor or hospital. Any settlement offer would not be admissible as evidence to establish liability or set damages.

Consideration of the claim would begin 20 days after the demand for arbitration was made, and must be completed within six months.

An award could include money as well as further medical treatment.

Sens. Basil Brown, D-Highland Park, Robert Davis, R-Gaylord, Alvin DeGrow, R-Pigeon, and Joseph Mack, D-Ironwood, either did not vote or were absent. Two other senators later added their votes for the bill, making 33 in all favoring it.

The Senate also passed a companion bill, 33-0, which requires

Wounded Policeman Dies In Hospital

MUSKEGON HEIGHTS, Mich. (AP) — Muskegon Heights policeman Johnny Harris died Wednesday night, less than 24 hours after he and his partner were shot while answering a trouble call.

Officer Irene Johnson remained in critical condition. Harris underwent surgery Tuesday, his 25th birthday, and was in critical condition until his death.

More than 100 donors, including dozens of Western Michigan police officers, gave blood for Harris and Miss Johnson.

Miss Johnson is the first woman patrol officer in Muskegon County.

The two officers were shot when their assailant crept around the side of the house and fired on them with a rifle.

Police charged Spencer Coleman, 50, of Muskegon Heights, with two counts of assault with intent to commit murder prior to Harris's death. Coleman was arraigned in his hospital room where he is recovering from wounds suffered when a third officer came to the aid of Miss Johnson and Harris.

Muskegon Heights police chief Joseph Mayo said

Coleman was carrying a rifle when he was arrested.

A shot which hit Harris severed an artery near the heart. Miss Johnson was wounded in the pelvis and legs.

Eleven Decades In Being Forgiven

Reasonably soon, as defined in the time standard with which things get done in Congress, Robert E. Lee, the Confederacy's most distinguished military leader, may be restored posthumously to U.S. citizenship.

Two months ago the Senate adopted a resolution to that effect and assuming Senator Harry Byrd, a conservative Democrat from Virginia, can shake off delaying tactics by Democratic liberals such as Cong. Elizabeth Holtzman from New York, the bill will be forwarded to President Ford who has already said he would be only too happy to sign it.

Ms. Holtzman wants to expand the Lee proposal into an all embracing amnesty for the Vietnam draft dodgers and deserters.

This goes against Byrd's innermost fibre and since it has taken 110 years to clear one of the many snafus from Civil War days, he feels confident he can ride out the circuit unfettered by ultra liberal sideline coaching.

Lee resigned his commission as a colonel in the U.S. army at the war's outbreak to accept command of the Virginia militia and shortly thereafter took on the added function of military advisor to Jefferson Davis, president of the Confederate States of America (CSA).

Davis appointed him commander-in-chief of all CSA forces in 1862.

Following the surrender at Appomattox and Lincoln's assassination, President Andrew Johnson offered full amnesty and pardon to rebel military who would swear allegiance to the U.S.

Johnson qualified the general amnesty as it pertained to the Confederacy's civilian and military leaders. He required they apply first for a pardon so their cases could be examined individually.

In June, 1865, Lee sent his application in a letter to General Grant who forwarded it to Johnson with "the earnest recommendation" that the pardon be granted.

The oath of allegiance went separately and at a later date, in October of 1865, to Washington. It never reached Johnson's desk and did not come to light until 1970 when some Civil War researcher unearthed it in a cardboard box file of old papers in the State Department.

The misdelivery mystery has yet to be resolved.

Johnson did restore Lee's voting rights under an 1868 general amnesty, but the general died two years later still without full citizenship. Under the 14th Amendment only a two-thirds vote by both houses in Congress can remove certain disabilities imposed upon persons engaged in insurrection or rebellion against his country.

The 1970 discovery of the allegiance oath has given impetus to Lee's restoration where prior efforts failed. In 1957 John F. Kennedy, then a Senator from Massachusetts, offered a resolution identical to Byrd's which lacked sufficient political steam to put across.

When the missing oath came to light, Byrd introduced his first resolution. It bogged down in a debate as to whether President Nixon could grant full amnesty by executive order. The decision was that he could not. Neither could Byrd make further progress until this year.

The compulsion to accept Byrd's view and to distinguish it from the Vietnam squabble is not the sectional appeasement some liberals paint it.

Though he executed the mechanics of the amnesty procedure somewhat imperfectly, Lee publicly called upon his erstwhile comrades in arms to work toward bringing a strife-torn nation together and urged unhesitating compliance with Johnson's original requirement.

The Vietnam dissenters still stand by their "the hell with the country" position.

No Nation Ever Had Better Birth Certificate

Not many Americans could recite the Declaration of Independence if called upon to do so. Nor should they be expected to, for it speaks of many things that are so much dead history.

But it must be a rare person who has not made its salient phrases a permanent part of his memory: "We hold these truths to be self-evident — all men are created equal — endowed by their Creator with certain inalienable rights — life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness."

The bulk of the Declaration, all the many "he has's" listing the numerous grievances the colonies had against George III, holds little interest for us today. It was not that way in the beginning, though, as Donald Barr Chidsey reminded us a few years ago in a fascinating book about the document. "July 4, 1776."

When the Declaration was first published, he wrote, and for some years afterward, the opening paragraphs caused little comment one way or the other. Philosophy was the fashion in 1776 and it was taken for granted that there would be a flowery and a high-principled apologia before the real argument was gotten to.

"The colonists were interested in more immediate matters. Philosophy was for the intellectual, an appropriate decoration but in itself without significance. The men on the street, or in the field, wanted sterner stuff, noisier, a specific hammer — and — tongs attack upon an actual physical being, namely King George."

Today, it is just the opposite: We couldn't care less about this section of the Declaration. We are no longer angry at King George. It is the philosophical introduction, as Chidsey noted, that the world has come to love. Indeed, to most Americans, it IS the Declaration of Independence.

Being such a fundamental part of the American credo, it is something we cannot be neutral about. We are still arguing — perhaps more today than ever before in our history — about what it really means to say that "all men are created equal" and how such a belief is to be translated into action. It is no trouble at all to get a controversy going as to whether there is even a Creator, much less one who created men with "certain inalienable rights."

As a scientific treatise, as a statement of provable fact, the Declaration of independence leaves much to be desired. But as a testament of the human spirit, as a guide and a goal — and a goal — for posterity, as a dream and a faith we are still dimly far from realizing yet cannot let go of, there is nothing to compare with it.

No nation ever had such a birth certificate as this cherished piece of parchment, our Declaration of Independence

SHE LIKES COUNTY HOSPITAL

Editor,
Having just been on a tour of Berrien General Hospital, I would like to express my pleasure over discovering the changes there. It is a far cry from the hospital of yore. It is no longer a place for the aged to live out their days, safely "put away."

There is much genuine concern for the patient as a human being evident in the physical and occupational therapy departments. The new concern seems to be to encourage people to be as self-reliant and interested in their surroundings as possible. Home aspects of life not usually found in a hospital, such as gardening, are brought to the longer-term patients. Noise is no longer a "no-no." Dancing and music-making are part of the activities available.

Thanks for a warm reception and congratulations for a job enthusiastically done!

TILANKS COMMISSION FOR DIAL-A-RIDE

Editor,
Compliments to the St. Joseph city commissioners who favored the Dial-A-Ride system. Though the percentage of users may be small the riders mobility is uncommensurable.

Hilltop grocery is a favorite stopping place of Dial-A-Ride patrons. It thrills me to see the happy folk shopping, having a snack (thanks to the area store) and socializing without that harrowed look of trying not to detain a relative or friend who is their transportation. I know, too, that often their trips are more of an urgent one to see a sick friend or health orientated.

Should support through taxation become necessary in the future, I would favor it and be pleased to think my support helpful to those who need just this small boost.

Heat Kills Boy Trapped In Auto

POPLAR, Mont. (AP) — A 6-year-old boy died, but his brother was revived after they became trapped in their father's police car in 90-degree heat, authorities at the Fort Peck Indian Reservation say.

Dead is Vernon D. Boxer, son of Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Boxer of Poplar. Boxer is a member of the reservation's police department.

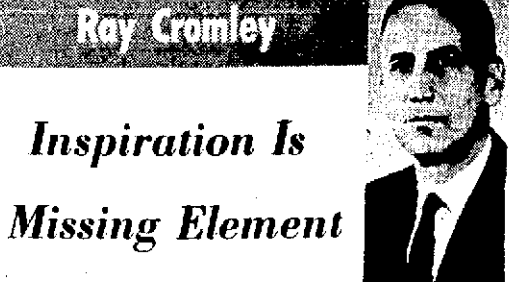

Vernon's brother, Arnold Eagle, 3, responded to resuscitation Wednesday and was hospitalized in stable condition.

August Hayes, tribal investigating officer, said the Boxer boy died of heat prostration en route to the hospital. He said it wasn't known how long the two were in the car before being found unconscious.

The children reportedly crawled into the patrol car sometime after their father parked it outside the family residence when he completed his night shift of duty. The children's mother works during the day.

Once inside, the youngsters were trapped in an area usually reserved for prisoners and designed so that persons cannot get out.

The car's back windows were inoperative and door latches could not be activated from the inside. A barrier also separates the front portion of the car from the rear seat.

Inspiration Is Missing Element

WASHINGTON — The U.S. presidency is a curious institution. A president, in one sense, has tremendous power. He can trip the nation into war, prolong a recession, or tear a country apart in dissension.

But he cannot of himself, by this act or that, pull a country out of a depression, either of the economy or of the spirit. These things the people must do themselves of their own will. The president can only be a symbol, someone who somehow gives hope — so that men will be able to invest, factories will put the unemployed to work and consumers will spend in the confidence there will be a tomorrow.

To provide that inspiration a president must prove himself, difficult for one who has been appointed and not elected. And particularly difficult for a president known chiefly as a nice, decent, friendly man.

To date, President Ford has been at work on his first step — of proving himself.

Commentators talk of the Mayaguez showdown off Communist Cambodia as the moment of truth, when Mr. Ford showed his decisiveness, guts and leadership.

Not so. Whether you approve or disapprove his stand on spending, it is Mr. Ford's month-in, month-out record of hot potato vetoes that demonstrate what he's made of.

For Mr. Ford, the Democratic congressional leaders and presidential hopefuls all know these vetoes of popular spending bills which would mean money in the pockets of the unemployed and in the purses of millions of others whose bills exceed their incomes in this time of recession-inflation, are pure gold for the Democratic opposition in 1976.

Further, in clamping down on spending to curb the worsening inflation he fears for 1976 and 1977, Mr. Ford could prolong the recession unduly, make his election for another term exceedingly difficult. He knows this.

My father worked on a cattle ranch in his youth. There was something to the tales then told, whether fact or legend, that carried a grain of truth stretching well beyond the cattle country.

A recipe I remember well was one for getting a recalcitrant horse back to the home corral. Tie a mule to him, the legend went. The stronger horse would pull the mule hither and yon — until he was tired. Then the determined mule would head for home. The horse, aroused, would pull and dash erratically, dragging the mule — and tire. Again the mule would head for home. Eventually, with the horse dashing in all directions and the mule heading only in one, the pair would arrive — where the mule wanted to go.

So it is with President Ford and the U.S. Congress.

Under the American system, no Congress can have its way against a president, if the president is determined. Senate and House can win one round or another, or a dozen rounds for that matter, but will be defeated in the end.

Here we run into mush. Quick fixes. Hopeful statements. Plans in the making. A resistance to way-out solutions. But little that would give us the inner belief we are on our way. Light at the end of the tunnel euphorisms breed cynicism, not hope.

One president or another has captured the imagination with dramatic gestures, however empty. Or with the force of his personality, or with programs which, whatever their practical merits or demerits, inspired the citizenry to act. These are not the ways of Mr. Ford.

What then can, or will he do? As yet there is no sign.

Dissidents Seek To Destroy U.S.

An extraordinarily complex problem has arisen in governing this country and conducting its foreign affairs, and so far this problem has not been satisfactorily confronted. In retrospect, the episode of Daniel Ellsberg and the Pentagon Papers may come to be seen as the defining event of our era, the threshold over which we passed from one era to another.

As all the transcripts and inner-circle memoirs make clear, Richard Nixon was obsessed with Ellsberg. He had good reason to be. For Ellsberg represents a new and imponderable factor in our politics, and the ultimate implications of the Ellsberg phenomenon are not yet clear.

Before the early 1960s, those concerned to protect the secrecy of sensitive government matters were chiefly concerned with actual espionage, either by professional foreign agents or by Americans loyal to a foreign state, in this case the Soviet Union. We thus had the Rosenberg, Coplon, Col. Abel and other cases here, the British had Klaus Fuchs and Kim Philby, and so on.

Beyond the small circle of espionage, however, the assumption generally prevailed that a legitimate government in Washington managed the affairs of this country, and that in the nature of things some matters had to remain secret.

President Dwight Eisenhower was politically embarrassed when the U-2 reconnaissance plane was shot down over the USSR in 1960, the pilot captured, and the official cover story exploded, but it was not widely supposed that the U-2 program all along should have been public knowledge. If a journalist had somehow stumbled on the U-2 program prior to its disclosure, the chances are very slight that he would have spread it all over the front pages.

If you lacked confidence in a

President, as by 1962 the country did in Harry Truman, then the obvious thing to do was get another President. But you did not try to subject the regular processes and institutions of government to relentless harassment.

The situation now is wholly different. In Congress, on Congressional staffs, and in the bureaucracy there now exist numerous individuals who express their dissent from this or that policy, or from U.S. policy overall, by leaking confidential material and otherwise harassing the established institutions and processes of government. Their motive is to discredit some policy, or even to discredit the entire system and replace it, the vocation of "investigative journalist" has now been institutionalized in a symbiotic relationship with this kind of dissent.

Consider, for example, the cases of Rep. Michael Harrington (D-Mass.) and Rep. Donald Dellums (D-Calif.). Both are "dissidents." Both now sit on the House Select Committee on Intelligence, which is supposed to look into CIA operations and take sensitive testimony. Whether information vital to the national security that should remain secret would be safe in their hands is a serious question.

The meaning of all this is I think both clear and portentous. In 1960, the U-2 affair did not lead to any great flap, let alone three separate high-level investigations of the CIA. Most people, and certainly most people in government, agree with the broad outlines of U.S. policy.

CIA operations in Chile do cause a flap because a substantial number of people here think Salvador Allende was just fine. The consensus is dead, because the global revolution now has a substantial segment of supporters in the U.S. and even some in Congress.

SIX YEARS OF MODEL CITIES END MONDAY

Problems Remain In BH-Benton After Spending Of $14 Million

By RALPH LUTZ
Staff Writer

The Benton Harbor-Benton township Model Cities program will officially end next Monday, after a six-year reign that has generated a myriad of social endeavors, a few construction projects and the spending of about $14 million in grants.

The $14 million today could build a modern high school for the Benton Harbor district.

It could finance a major industry in Pipestone Industrial park, or could have bailed out bankrupt Benton Harbor Malleable Industries many times.

It's about $5 million more than the cost of the two bridges, now under construction in the Twin Cities.

Was Model Cities worth it?

It did what it was intended to do, but did not solve some basic community problems, according to Melvin Farmer, Jr., Benton Harbor's deputy city manager, who also serves as director of the city-township Model Cities program.

Farmer reminded that Model Cities programs were the brainchild of former President Lyndon Johnson's "Great Society" plan. Model Cities was billed as a "demonstration" program and limited to only certain blighted areas of each city. Benton Harbor and Benton township were unique in being the only two units of government joined under one Model Cities program.

"Over-all Model Cities accomplished its objects to be innovative and experimental in trying programs that couldn't be undertaken otherwise, because of lack of funding," Farmer said.

Farmer said through Model Cities contracts, all local governmental units — city, township, schools, county, and state — were brought together.

He said they now understand each other's problems, more.

As to solving crime and unemployment and gathering citizen participation, Model Cities hasn't worked, according to Farmer. On these problems, Farmer commented:

"I don't know how to combat this. I guess it's symptomatic of the poor. They don't have the time or inclination to get involved in the community."

Meager turnouts for members of Model Cities' citizens steering council elections were cited, along with low turnouts for municipal elections and school elections.

Farmer said Model Cities officials have tried everything to get citizens active in their community. He listed a newsletter, seminars, news releases, and even door-to-door contacts.

Farmer explained how Model Cities locally generated spending of at least $14 million.

He said it began in 1969 with a $80,000 planning grant, followed by action years of programs, which finally totaled slightly over $5 million.

This money came directly to Model Cities from the federal Housing and Urban Development agency.

There was more, however, as Model Cities entered contracts with other agencies for specific projects. These projects triggered more governmental grants.

For example, Farmer said that under one contract, Model Cities gave $16,000 of its HUD money to the Benton Harbor senior citizens center. As a result of this, Farmer said the center was able to secure another $48,000 from the State Council on Aging.

There were many other examples, including an $80,000 outlay by Model Cities to a Neighborhood Development Program effort that brought in over $1 million from the federal government for related city and township projects.

Of all the local Model Cities projects, the most visible are rebuilt Waukonda and Woodland avenues in Benton Harbor and Benton township. The Waukonda project cost nearly $500,000 and was funded from Model Cities money that was unused at the end of its first action year in 1970. The money was "recycled" into the street work.

Other visible projects include neighborhood centers at 979 Waukonda, 809 Territorial road and 1609 Highland avenue. These include mini-libraries, working in conjunction with the Benton Harbor public library.

As to the future of programs initiated with Model Cities money, it appears many will be continued through other agencies.

Farmer cited the Twin Cities Area Chamber of Commerce taking over manpower training, the St. Joseph-based Riverwood Mental Health center taking over mental health efforts, and the county extension service taking over a family aides effort.

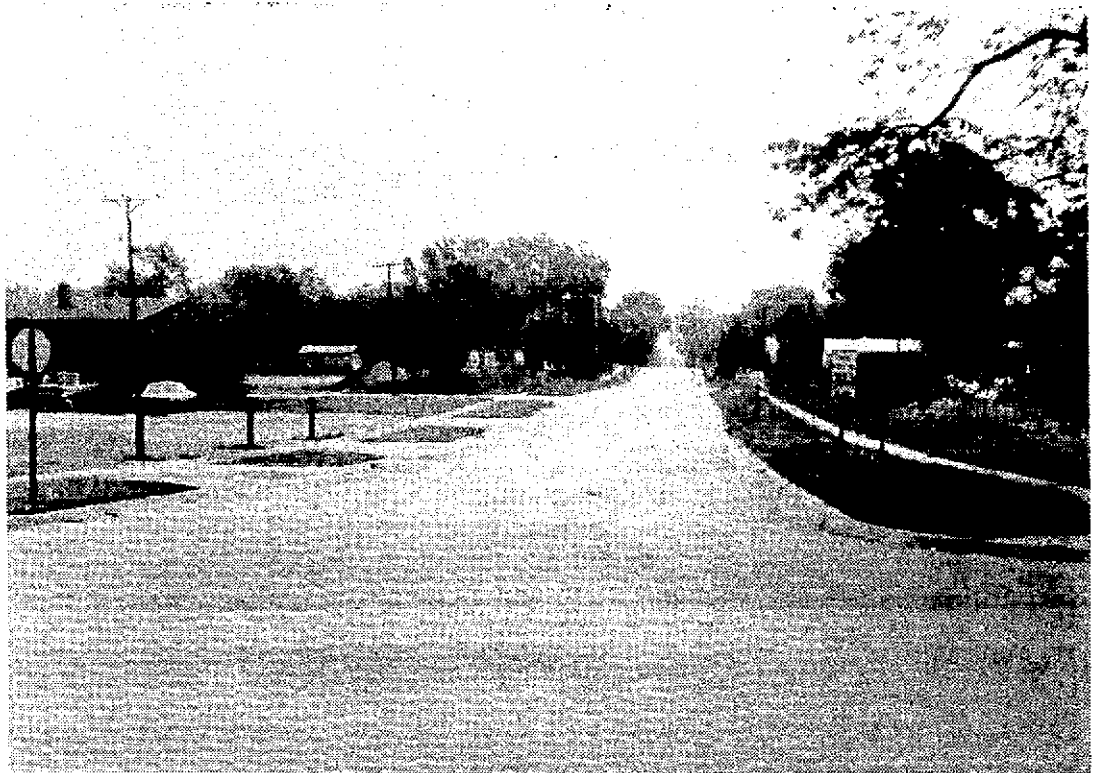

The city will continue to operate the 809 Territorial road center, Farmer said, adding that the Berrien county health department will continue the dental health program.

Model Cities currently has an administration staff of seven, including Farmer, and has had up to 200 volunteers in varied programs, Farmer said.

Administrators also include, Ron Weber, assistant director; Mary DeFoe, program director; Mark Detwiler and John Conaster, fiscal evaluators; Carolyn Phillips, office manager; and Sharon Beitman, secretary.

Model Cities program credits include legal services, preventive health, scholarships, summer recreation, police-student liaison, Distar (a language, reading and arithmetic instruction for kindergarten through second graders at Seely-McCord school), and a credit union.

Farmer said Model Cities auditing work should be closed out by next fall after the actual (See back page, sec. 1, col. 1)

township Model Cities program, which ends Monday. Project started in 1970 and cost nearly $500,000, from Model Cities funds. (Staff photos)

MAIN OFFICE: Old house at 662 Highland avenue, Benton Harbor, was acquired by Model Cities as its main office in 1972. Structure once was home of Women's Christian Temperance Union. It was acquired more recently by Whirlpool Corp. which operated a counseling service and the house was known as "Highland House." City plans to continue use of its centers after Model Cities ends. Benton township has not made final determination on centers in township.

MODEL CITIES CENTER: Modular structure built in 1971-73 at 979 Waukonda avenue, Benton Harbor, was first of three Model Cities neighborhood centers. Neighborhood library here operates under Model Cities in conjunction with Benton Harbor public library. Similar neighborhood library is at 1609 Highland avenue, near Crystal avenue, Benton township.

VARIED HISTORY: Model Cities center at 809 Territorial road, Benton Harbor, once was Grace Lutheran church, and more recently an annex to Morton Elementary school. It was acquired by Model Cities in 1972 and served program in varied ways, including a mental health project.

Berrien Solid Waste Plan Retains Use Of Landfills

By SCOTT WILLIAMSON
Staff Writer

The Berrien county Solid Waste Advisory committee yesterday capped a year's work when it approved a solid waste plan for the county which basically calls for continued use of landfill sites to dispose of solid waste.

The committee also suggested that the county board of public works administer $225,000 in federal revenue-sharing funds to guarantee adequate solid waste disposal systems until the year 2000.

The committee endorsed continued use of landfills in a 40-page document to be submitted to the state Department of Natural Resources solid waste division in order to comply with a state law requiring solid waste plans for communities or counties with more than 10,000 population.

"With existing technology (and) where environmentally acceptable sites are still available within reasonable transportation range as they are in Berrien county, operation of sanitary landfills remains the least expensive method of waste disposal," the report stated.

The report also pointed out reduction of various types of refuse at their source "is currently the only economically feasible way to reduce the volume of solid waste which must be landfilled." The report noted a present lack of local markets for secondary (recycled) materials or fuel generated by recycling operations.

Charles Eckenstahler, county planning director and secretary for the committee, said a joint meeting of the committee and the board of public works will be held shortly and the committee will request that the BPW take over the committee's functions and implement the plan.

He also noted that five local governmental units in the county of over 10,000 population must concur with the plan since the units do not have their own solid waste plans. Concurrence with the county plan will enable them to comply with the state law.

The units are the cities of Benton Harbor and St. Joseph, and Benton, St. Joseph, and Niles townships.

The report says the most pressing need in connection with solid waste in Berrien county is in the northern portion of the county, since the landfill which serves the Twin Cities and other areas in the northern part of the county has a life expectancy of three to five more years.

The report stressed that the BPW should begin the process of securing another site to serve as a landfill for the northern part of the county.

The report outlined a timetable which calls for purchase of a new landfill site for northern Berrien county during the first six months of 1978, and site development and phase-out of the current landfill between 1976 and 1978.

The report also suggests that the $225,000 allocated for solid waste by the county board of commissioners be put into a revolving fund which would help purchase land for new landfills, equipment, and related items. Proceeds from the sale of land to a landfill authority or from gate receipts would be channeled back into the revolving fund to help other landfills or solid waste disposal systems.

The report also noted that Berrien's current estimated population is 165,300, and estimated one ton of refuse is generated annually per person. The figure, however, takes into account refuse generated by industry and applies that to the general population.

Twin City Players Have Hilarious Hit

By ANITA SMITH
Staff Writer

Hilarious dialogue was superbly delivered by Jack Stiefel and Pat Cullinan in Twin City Players' production of "The Owl and the Pussycat" on opening night, June 20.

The play will be presented again Friday and Saturday, June 27 and 28, at 8 p.m. at Twin City Players Studio Theatre, Red Arrow highway at I-94, Stevensville.

The players present flawless performances in the three-act adult comedy written by Bill Mahoff.

Stiefel plays F. Sherman, a owlish young bookstore clerk who fancies himself a great writer. Through his San Francisco apartment window, he uses his binoculars to see a prostitute at work and reports her to her landlord.

Doris W., the "Pussycat," portrayed by Pat Cullinan, is evicted from her apartment and decides to move in with the clerk much against his wishes.

Stiefel portrays the character of a man of many moods fighting within himself. At one moment, the owlish clerk is a straight-laced puritan and in the next a madman on the verge of a nervous breakdown.

Cullinan see-saws from a loud-mouthed prostitute to an almost coyish little girl.

The perfectly matched pair display their professionalism with perfect timing and stamina. Throughout their performance, the realism is so effective they give the audience the impression it is watching real life instead of players on a stage.

is directed by B.J. Price.

Assisting with the production for the play are Lee Maickel, production manager; Maickel, Richard Danner, Jack Stiefel and Price, set; Ed Keeter and Nancy Stiefel, lights and sound; Maickel, Price, Martha Fefferman and Carol Gubbier, props; Gordon Formisima, publicity; Steven Haffer and Carol Rutz, box office, and Price and Maxine Bailey, programs.

The play is being presented by arrangement with Samuel French, Inc., New York City.

"The Owl and the Pussycat" begins the Twin City Players 1975-76 season ticket drive. Plays scheduled for the season include "Natalie Needs A Nightie," comedy; "6 Rms Riv Vu," comedy; "And Miss Reardon Drinks A Little," drama, and "Stop the World I Want to Get Off," musical.

Around the clock with WOMEN

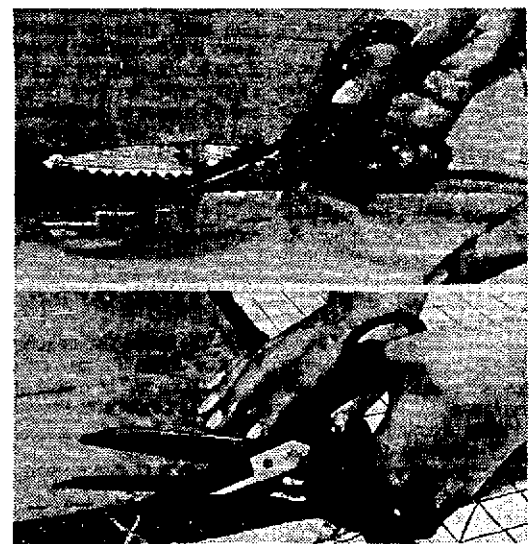

Cut Easier With Right Scissors

Is there just one screwdriver, one hammer, one saw in the family toolbox? Is there just one skillet in your kitchen? Probably not. Just as you need different carpentry and cooking tools for different jobs, you need different shears for different cutting-and-sewing jobs.

Women who sew are cutting into all kinds of different fabrics, from the flimsiest of nylons to fake fur, leather and thick upholstery fabrics.

Different scissors are designed for different jobs - and the woman who sews frequently needs at least a half-dozen different cutting tools.

USEFUL TOOLS: Endlessly useful are small sewing scissors, left, for cutting out buttonholes, clipping notches and curves. This is a good size for hand-sewing. Another small handy sewing item in a scissors wardrobe is a quick-clip model, center. Use it to clip thread ends and rip seams. Pinking shears, top right, are a must for the serious sewer. These cut pattern and finish seam at the same time. Also essential are scissors with extra sharp knife edges, bottom right, to cut cleanly through tough synthetics and laminated fabrics. The latter two pair scissors come in left-hand models.

Lantern Night Honors Two Local Women

EAST LANSING — Lisbeth Lee and Geraldine Atkinson were among 50 graduating senior women honored in traditional Lantern Night ceremonies at Michigan State university.

Miss Lee, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Sheldon Lee, 518 Botham avenue, St. Joseph, is a June graduate with a degree in retailing and clothing and textiles and a graduate of St. Joseph high school.

She is a member of the MSU Honors college and Omicron Nu, a home economics honor society, and has won numerous awards for her achievements in retailing and clothing and textiles.

Miss Atkinson is the daughter of Mrs. Ella Mae Atkinson, 167 Cataipa, Benton Harbor. She is a June graduate with a degree in medical technology and a graduate of Benton Harbor high school.

The Lantern Night festivities began with a lantern procession from Cowles House, the home of MSU President and Mrs. Clifton Wharton, to Beaumont Tower where the ceremony was witnessed by parents and friends.

Following the ceremony, a reception was held at Cowles House.

Lantern Night is sponsored by Mortar Board, Tower Guard, Alpha Lambda Delta and Associated Women Students, women's honoraries at MSU.

According to Lisa Fisselman, coordinator of the ceremonies, the first program was organized by the wife of a former Secretary to the Board of Agriculture in the 1930's.

"The lantern," said Miss Fisselman, "symbolizes responsibility.

"In earlier days of the ceremony," she said, "each class of women except the freshman class carried lanterns in a procession through campus which ended at the president's house where the honors were bestowed.

"Near the end of the ceremony, senior women handed their lanterns to the juniors, the junior women handed theirs to sophomores and sophomores to freshmen."

The passing of the lantern symbolically relieves each class of the responsibility it had borne and passed those responsibilities on to the coming class.

'Your Problems' By Ann Landers

'Newspeak' Evades Reality

Dear Ann Landers: An English professor at Brooklyn College, Leonard R. Ashley, came out recently with some ideas that are worth repeating. He could yet save the English language.

Professor Ashley points out that in the past, uneducated people were blamed for debasing our mother tongue. Today it's the educated people, not the illiterates, who are doing the most damage.

The worst offenders, he says, are writers of advertising copy and politicians. Ashley notes that a 19-inch TV screen is described as "huge" and commercials are studded with misleading words such as "additive," "enriched" and "conditioners."

He deplores calling previous statements "inoperative" when they become embarrassing to politicians, and observes that offensive war preparations are described as "defense programs." A depression is called a "downward adjustment" or a "retrenchment." When the stock market plunges it is described as "correcting itself."

Teachers come in for their share of criticism, too. Instead of saying Johnny "doesn't get along with the other kids," the teacher writes a note to the effect that "Johnny does not relate well with his peer group." Moreover, parents don't want to hear that their children are "lazy," but they don't mind being told they are "underachievers."

Another evasion of reality is calling deviant sex behavior "an alternate lifestyle."

The sage from Brooklyn urges the use of simple words that communicate and the avoidance of fancy words that confuse. I'm in total agreement with Professor Ashley's campaign and I know you are, too, which is why the world loves Ann Landers. — For Telling It Like It Is Dear For Telling It: Thanks, honey. I love you, too.

Just Lucky

Dear Ann Landers: I am 18 and have a good job. My boy friend is 20 and works for his dad. We've been going together for two years and have been "semi-engaged" for 11 months. By "semi-engaged" I mean I don't have my ring yet but we've been having sexual relations.

Neither of us has taken any precautions against pregnancy but nothing has happened. It just occurred to me that maybe one or both of us might be sterile. Is this possible? How do we find out for sure? — Hit And Miss

Dear H and M: It's possible, but unlikely. My guess is that you aren't sterile, just lucky. By all means go to a Planned Parenthood Chapter (look in the phone book) and repeat your story. They will "educate" you and tell you and your boy friend where to go for testing.

Be Prepared

Dear Ann Landers: You've straightened out a few of our family fights and stuck up for me when I needed it. Now I want to do something for your readers.

Please tell them that the minute they finish reading this to place a pencil and writing pad by the telephone. You never know when you might have to take down an important number. Trusting to memory can be risky. If a person doesn't get a number right it can cause trouble, especially if it's for someone else. I know because — It Just Happened To Me

Dear Hap: Thanks for the reminder. And now, may I add a clincher? TIE the pen or pencil to the phone. People have a way of walking away with the darned things.

Traditional Fare For July 4 Dinner

Fifty or one hundred years ago, if you lived in New England you wouldn't dare have a July 4th dinner that didn't include salmon for the main course and blueberries for dessert.

Dinner was usually served after the political speeches at the town square downtown were over and everybody headed back home.

This being the Bicentennial year, July 4th takes on a special significance and to help celebrate the day, Women's Day magazine in its current issue offers a traditional Independence Day Dinner.

The menu includes oven-poached salmon with egg sauce and for dessert, blueberry grunt. What's the difference between blueberry grunt, slump, pandowdy or buckle? In most of Massachusetts a rich blueberry sauce with dumplings steamed on it is called a slump, but on Cape Cod it's a grunt. A buckle is a streusel coffee cake with blueberries in the cake. The magazine offers recipes not only for the grunt, but for the buckle and pandowdy as well.

OVEN-POACHED SALMON WITH EGG SAUCE

(By oven-poaching instead of boiling you avoid the danger of overcooking.)

4 cups water
3 lemons, sliced

1 teaspoon salt
1/4 teaspoon peppercorns
1 bay leaf
1 salmon, about 6 pounds, cleaned and without head

Parsley Egg Sauce

Bring to boil water, 1/2 sliced lemon, salt, peppercorns and bay leaf, simmer 5 minutes. Line broiler pan (without rack) with wide strip of heavy-duty foil extending several inches beyond ends. Grease well. Place salmon on foil, add broth and cover with greased waxed paper. Bake in 375 degree oven 45 to 60 minutes or until fish flakes easily with fork. With help of foil lift carefully to serving platter. (Reserve one-third cup salmon broth for sauce.) Remove foil, tearing away at edge if necessary. Garnish with remaining lemon slices and parsley. Serve hot with Egg Sauce. Makes 10 to 12 servings.

EGG SAUCE

3 tablespoons butter or margarine
1 1/2 tablespoons flour
3/4 cup milk
One-third cup salmon broth
1/4 teaspoon salt
Dash each of pepper and nutmeg

Melt butter, stir in flour and cook and stir until lightly colored. Gradually add milk and broth and cook and stir until smooth and thickened. Season with salt, pepper and nutmeg. Carefully stir in eggs. Makes about 1 1/4 cups.

Back in the '30s a certain soap was advertised as 99.44 per cent pure. Ely Culbertson applied that and said some bids were 99.44 per cent forcing.

About that time the best players, including young Oswald Jacoby, started to play the jump raise to three as an absolute force.

It took 30 years to get the experts to change their minds. Today almost all experts use limit raises. The raise from one to two shows support for partner and not much of a hand. The jump raise to game says, "As far as I am concerned we want to be in game." The jump from one to three says, "I want to be in game unless your hand is a real horror."

South's hand is almost a minimum. Take away that jack of diamonds and many people would pass it. But with that jack of diamonds South should bid the spade game after North's strong, but limit, jump raise.

The game contract is not one for South to be proud of, but with the club finesse working and trumps breaking 3-2 it makes easily.

Dr. Lester Coleman

I get short of breath with even slight exertion. I'm 47 and I don't think this is normal for my age. Could this be a sign of a heart or lung condition?

Mr. T.H., N.C.

Dear Mr. H.:
Poor physical condition due to lack of exercise, excess weight and tobacco are probably the most important reasons for shortness of breath in a man of your age.

This is speculative, of course. There are a great many types of heart, lung and circulatory conditions that can produce the same conditions. It is important, therefore, to track down and rule out any underlying medical reason for your shortness of breath.

A general examination can include vital lung capacity studies. The relationship between the intake of oxygen and the output of carbon dioxide can be evaluated.

Stress studies of the heart while at rest and during activity give the doctor a clear picture of the heart and the circulatory system.

In the absence of any fundamental health problem, well-programmed exercises, loss of weight and avoidance of tobacco can help you in your conditioning process.

I used to box and was left with a cauliflower ear. Can this be fixed by plastic surgery?

Mr. G.C., N.J.

Dear Mr. C.:

The so-called "cauliflower ear" is caused by a collection of blood between the cartilage of the ear and the skin.

These injuries must be taken care of immediately by emptying the blood from the enclosed space. If the blood is allowed to remain, scar tissue forms and the "cauliflower" distortion of the ear follows.

Repair of the deformity then becomes extremely difficult. Each case must be evaluated by a plastic surgeon. Some surgical procedures can improve the appearance of the ear, but rarely can such an ear ever be returned to a completely normal appearance.

Americans Can Cope With The Economy

EAST LANSING — Americans are most concerned about coping with lower incomes, but they are optimistic they can cope, according to Irene Hathaway, Michigan State University Extension family resource management specialist.

Mrs. Hathaway spoke on Riding the Economic Escalator, during MSU's College Week for Women.

"Families are looking for new alternatives. They are more conscious about making better decisions, based on family goals," she added. "They're doing more comparison shopping and lowering their expectations."

Many families are getting back to the basics and doing their own gardening, sewing, etc. Every month, 500,000 more people become do-it-yourselfers.

"Inflation and recession will ease up, but the pressures won't end for several years. It may take longer in Michigan, because we are dependent upon the automobile industry, which is tied so strongly to the energy crisis," according to Mrs. Hathaway.

Great Lakes Shipwrecks Could Become Park Sites

By CHARLES C. CAIN
Associated Press Writer
DETROIT (AP) — Secrets gleaned from records of 1,321 shipwrecks in Michigan Great Lakes waters may pave the way for an underwater park system in the state.

The two-year study of the shipwrecks was completed recently at the Great Lakes Research Center at Bowling Green State University in Ohio. "It was strictly a dry study, and I never even got my feet wet," said Dr. Richard Wright, director of the center.

He explained Wednesday that all his information about the hundreds of wrecks was gained from government files, old newspapers, ship's books and other data.

The study was commissioned by the Michigan Department of Natural Resources (DNR) which was given a grant for the project by the National Parks System.

"There is no glamorous sunken treasure ship out there, no Spanish doubloons, but rather just plain old ships," Wright said.

He said records showed most of the vessels, 535 to be exact, were lost in Lake Michigan.

Wright said that during the golden years of Michigan's lumber industry "anything that could float was pressed into service with a corresponding high rate of losses."

After 1909, wooden hulled ships were replaced with ones with steel hulls and navigational aids that were more sophisticated, thus cutting down the number of shipwrecks, he said.

Jim Bryant, a planning specialist with the DNR, said the research center's findings will be studied closely to see if they warrant the state's getting into the underwater park field.

Bryant said that while the project is still in the preliminary stage, one possibility would be to put out markers indicating where the wrecks were located.

"That would make it easier for scuba divers to get down to the hulks for exploration and retrieving some items from the ships," Bryant said.

He pointed out that under Michigan law, anything recovered from the wreckage is the property of the state, unless it gives the diver permission to take it.

"I don't want to spoil the fun for some of the scuba divers who might go after a souvenir such as a ship's wheel or a compass, but it is proper, I think, for this material to belong to the state, not to be a decoration on some one's mantlepiece," Wright said.

Bryant added, "This system of underwater parks probably will have to wait until the state is in better economic condition but it does present the possibility of opening a whole new field of recreation to scuba divers and others who would like to explore these wrecks on the bottom of the lakes."

"For nondivers, it might be possible to have a diver go down with a closed circuit TV camera with the picture relayed back to people on shore so they could enjoy the thrill of the underwater hunt," he said.

Proposed Tough Drug Law Hit

By PETE YOST
Associated Press Writer
LANSING, Mich. (AP) — Len Stutman, whose son died last year while addicted to heroin, says wiretapping and life jail terms for top narcotics dealers won't solve the drug problem in Michigan.

"If you increase the risk (of selling drugs), you just increase the profit margin," Stutman told a House Judiciary Committee hearing on Wednesday.

Stutman of Lansing was one of several persons who spoke against proposals to legalize court-approved wiretaps on suspected drug dealers and require mandatory life sentences for those convicted of selling a kilogram or more of narcotics.

Stutman, who said a law enforcement crackdown could make the problem worse, not better, was one of half a dozen witnesses who criticized proposals by the committee chairman, state Rep. Paul Rosenbaum, D-Battle Creek.

"What we are dealing with is the most lucrative business in America today," said Stutman, who favors emphasis on drug treatment. "Any time a person can invest $2,000 in Colombia and in 30 days get a return of $48,000 to $55,000 you are going to find those kinds of risk takers."

Stutman's story of his 20-year-old son's struggle with addiction and his family's efforts to deal with the problem received national attention.

Law enforcement officials strongly support the wiretap and sentencing proposals, but John A. Shrank, vice chairman of the committee of substance abuse for the state Bar, said he has strong reservations about them.

Shrank, representing about a third of the 24 committee members, said he would oppose bugging entire rooms, which would be allowed under the legislation. He said wiretap provisions need to be limited.

The attorney said life terms and mandatory 20-year terms for top dealers caught with less than a kilogram would require a massive expansion of the TORTOLA, B.V.I. (AP) — The total population of this group of 30-odd tiny British islands in the Caribbean is only 10,000. Its government Labor Department has just released the results of a survey showing an employment increase for the past year of 14 per cent over the year before.

Gasoline 'Average' Dips

By ASSOCIATED PRESS
The average price of regular gas dropped three-tenths of a per cent along the state's major highways this week, according to the Automobile Club of Michigan's weekly fuel survey.

This week's decrease ends an eight-week-long rise in prices. A check of 300 stations along main tourist routes showed regular gas selling for an average 58.8 cents a gallon.

No-lead fuel along the major roads dropped .2 cents to an average 60.4 cents per gallon.

Prices in the Detroit metropolitan area were higher this week, with regular gas selling for an average 57.7 center per gallon, up .1 cent.

No-lead was selling for 58.8 cents per gallon, a .3 cent increase over last week.

Lawmaker Defends Fancy Office

By PATRICK CONNOLLY
Associated Press Writer
LANSING, Mich. (AP) — State Sen. John Bowman says $6,500 worth of new furnishings for his office was a justified public expense because "the office needed remodeling."

The Senate has spent about $300,000 so far this year on remodeling offices, even though legislative leaders asked the public to tighten their belts and accept a recession-year tax increase.

In reaction to news accounts, the Senate recently quit detailing expenses for furniture and trips.

Bowman, D-Roseville, held a news conference to defend spending on new office furnishings. He excluded two media critics of his spending, Tom Greene of WJBK-TV Detroit and Gary Schuster of the Detroit News.

However, Greene and Schuster, attended as uninvited guests.

Among bills Bowman submitted to the state recently were $2,451, that included blue suede cloth drapes; three chairs for $675; a high backed chair with a pillow headrest, and a glass-topped, hand-rubbed bronze base table.

Bowman also ordered expensive wallpaper, indirect lighting and about $2,085 worth of robin's egg blue carpeting at $15 a yard.

"I think we've been quite modest in our expenditures. I think I probably spent about the average. I don't think you can furnish offices for much less than that," Bowman said. "For one thing, the carpeting was pretty well worn out and patched in some places," Bowman said. His office needed a heavy facelift, he added, because "through sewers an odor got into the outer office."

He produced a receipt indicating he personally paid $467 for a floor-to-ceiling mirror, although he could not produce the receipt several months ago when requested by newsmen after the mirror was installed.

Bowman's office was last occupied by former Sen. Milton Zaagman, R-Grand Rapids, who had it remodeled about 18 months ago. Zaagman was defeated for re-election and is a lobbyist for the Michigan Medical Society.

Other senators have come under public fire for luxury appointments in their state offices. Sen. Joseph Mack, D-Ironwood, billed taxpayers for $35,000 remodeling and Sen. Robert Davis, R-Gaylord, spent about $17,000 on new furnishings, which include a bathroom.

Bowman, 53, a legislator since 1974, said he probably would not run for re-election in 1978.

"I seriously doubt I'll run for the office again. I think the time has come when I should start spending more time at home," he said.

Kentwood Man Strangled

GRAND RAPIDS, Mich. (AP) — A 75-year-old Kentwood man was found strangled with an electrical cord on the third floor of a boarded-up building he owned in the inner city of Grand Rapids. Antonio Russo was discovered Tuesday night by his sons in the building in which he had lived and operated a barber shop for 25 years. He had gone to the building to cut weeds and was last seen talking to a stranger, police said.

SENATE OKAYS COLLEGE FUNDS

LANSING, Mich. (AP) — The state Senate has approved the first budget bill for the upcoming fiscal year, an $89.9 million measure to fund the state's community colleges.

The bill is some $7 million over the recommendations contained in Gov. William Milliken's $3.04 billion budget proposal for the 1975-76 fiscal year. It also is $11.7 million more than the colleges received last year.

The bill, approved 29-6 Wednesday, now goes to the House.

It is the first budget bill approved by either chamber, and the legislature expects to meet well into July before enacting the entire budget.

The legislature is expected to pass a measure soon to permit the state to continue spending at current levels for a month or more into the new fiscal year, which begins July 1.

The increase in the community colleges budget was attributed mainly to increased enrollment estimates over Milliken's forecast. The Senate Appropriations Subcommittee on community colleges found the institutions themselves predicted 7,172 students more than did Milliken.

They forecast an enrollment of 100,717, while the governor's staff foresaw 93,545 students.

The bill was defended as a "bare-bones" budget even by Sen. Charles Zollar, R-Benton Harbor, who traditionally has supported fiscal restraint in budgeting. Zollar served on the subcommittee which considered it.

Following are the recommended appropriations for the state's community colleges, and the increase or decrease from the 1974-75 appropriation:

Times Hit For Story On Israel

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Ford administration and the government of Israel say that publication in the New York Times of a reported Israeli disengagement proposal to Egypt complicates the process of working out a Middle East agreement.

The criticism from the State Department on Wednesday was unusual in that it was made in the President's name and appeared to be directed partly at Israel.

The State Department advised against drawing any conclusions from the news account. "The Israeli government said the report contained many inaccuracies."

The Times' story, filed from Jerusalem, said Israel offered Egypt a land corridor to the oil fields at Abu Rudeis in occupied Sinai and a partial withdrawal from the strategic Gidi and Mitla passes. The story was attributed to Israeli government officials.

Economist Predicts State Jobless Rate To Hit 13%

EAST LANSING, Mich. (AP) — Michigan's 1975 unemployment rate will average 13 per cent, or more than double what it was two years ago, a Michigan State University economist predicts.

Only one metropolitan area, Muskegon-Muskegon Heights, is expected to have an unemployment rate less than double what it was two years ago, said David Verway, MSU associate professor in the Bureau of Business and Economic Research.

The area had an unemployment rate of 7.7 per cent in 1973 compared to 13 per cent in 1975, Verway said.

In northern Michigan, only three counties will be likely to have rates double those of 1973, Verway said. They are Oscoda, Roseminon and Ogemaw.

Nine of 13 labor market areas that seem headed for unemployment rates under 10 per cent are located in the Upper Peninsula, he said. This is the first time since the 1950s that the UP rate has been significantly below the statewide average.

The UP's fastest growing area is around Iron River, where a new American Motors factory opened and employs over 300 persons, Verway said. These jobs represent 10 per cent of wage and salary employment in sparsely-populated Iron County.

The average statewide unemployment rate in 1973 was 5.9 per cent. Verway made his predictions in the current issue of the Michigan State Economic Record, a bimonthly publication of the bureau.

In northern lower Michigan, Traverse City has become "a magnet" for dissatisfied citizens from industrialized southeastern Michigan cities, Verway said. He said Traverse City has a new industrial park that has attracted several companies. Nearby Kalkaska is in the midst of an oil boom, he said.

Residential building and capital goods spending still are in a slump and the over-all state economic outlook does not look good, he said.

"Automobile employment is unlikely to improve over year-ago levels until August or September when the companies will be building inventories of the 1976 models," he said.

Grease Fire In Benton

Benton township firemen Wednesday put out a fire that damaged the kitchen at the home of Ethel Amos, 2381 Kurt street. Firemen reported a babysitter said she had put a pan on the stove then left to attend a child. Grease in the pan caught fire and it spread to the stove hood and cupboards.

Plan 'Energy Stamps' For Poor

LANSING, Mich. (AP) — A $29.6 million proposal to provide poor families with public-funded "energy stamps" was detailed Wednesday by state Public Service Commissioner William Rosenberg.

Under the plan, public funds would subsidize energy stamps that could be used for purchase of residential electricity and home heating supplies. These would include natural gas, fuel oil, coal or liquefied propane gas.

PSC and legislative approval of the plan is still needed, he said.

The plan would cover 10 to 20 per cent of the home energy costs of low income families, Rosenberg said.

Some 305,000 Michigan families would be eligible for a sliding scale of subsidy payments based on family income and number of dependents, Rosenberg said. The proposed program would be administered through the same structure which currently handles food stamps, with eligible families purchasing energy vouchers which could be redeemed for a greater value. Maximum eligible household income would be $6,000 annually.

Gov. William Milliken has "encouraged exploration of these proposals," Rosenberg said.

Average Michigan residential electric bills rose about 40 per cent and average natural gas bills about 45 per cent in 1974, Rosenberg said. The proposed subsidy program is designed to cover the average increase in prices for home heating and electrical service since 1973.

"The effect of subsidies would be to reduce the cost of home energy bills from around 10 per cent to about five per cent of disposable income for the lowest income population," Rosenberg said. He submitted a report to the Governor's Program Council, the appropriate legislative committees and the other two state Public Service Commission members.

"There are two facts of life that must be faced. First revenues to the utilities must rise to cover the higher cost of service if society is to have adequate energy now and in the future," Rosenberg said.

"Second, many lower income families, particularly retirees and others living on fixed incomes, cannot afford their share of these higher costs," he said.

He cited a national study showing low income families spend an average of 11 per cent of their income on natural gas and electricity, compared to less than two per cent for households with annual incomes over $16,000.

MARKSMAN KILLED

WINDSOR, Ont. (AP) — Gerry Ouellette, 40, of Windsor, a gold-medal marksman in the 1956 Olympics, was killed when his single-engine plane hit a power line Wednesday and crashed in a wheat field about 25 miles east of Windsor.

Western Front Developing To Keep Israelis In U.N.

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) — A Western front is developing against a proposal to expel Israel from the United Nations.

Joseph J. Sisco, U.S. under-secretary of state for political affairs, and Ivor Richard, Britain's ambassador to the United Nations, both warned Wednesday against any such anti-Israeli move at the U.N. General Assembly session which opens Sept. 16.

Israel's expulsion because of its continued occupation of Arab territories captured in the 1967 Arab-Israeli war was recommended in March by a 17-nation coordinating committee for the so-called nonaligned bloc in the United Nations.

Foreign ministers from about 75 of these countries, a majority of the U.N. members, are to take up the recommendation at a meeting in Lima, Peru, Aug. 25-29. The incoming chief American delegate to the United Nations, Daniel Patrick Moynihan, told the Senate Foreign Relations Committee recently the United States should meet the threat with a warning it would walk out of the assembly and withdraw its financial support from the United Nations if Israel is denied its seat in the assembly.

Richard in a speech to the U.N. Correspondents Association on Wednesday said withdrawal of American support "would be the end of the United Nations."

Sisco refused to say whether the United States would threaten to stop payments to the United Nations. But he told the National Jewish Community Relations Advisory Council the U.S. government would oppose any move in the assembly to expel Israel "with all our strength."

"We're against it on its merits, and we are against it on constitutional grounds," he said. "We are making this very clear."

Sisco said the State Department has "seen some indications that an effort will be made to expel Israel in the General Assembly." He said the United States will "do whatever is required" to discourage introduction of such a proposal and to defeat it if it is submitted.

Israel could only be suspended or expelled from the United Nations by action of both the General Assembly and the Security Council, and the United States could block the move with a veto in the council.

The Asian, African and Communist nations lined up an overwhelming 91 votes to exclude South Africa from participation in the 1974 assembly. But it is most unlikely the Arabs could muster any such showing against Israel. Arab promises of help induced the black African nations to break relations with Israel. But the Arab oil nations made no exceptions when they quadrupled oil prices, and reports from the capitals of black African nations say most of those governments now think they should not have abandoned Israel.

Tax Owed By Heroin Dealer

DETROIT (AP) — A state agency, in a novel attempt to collect more money, has ruled that a convicted heroin dealer owes them back sales taxes for purchases made by addicts over the last three years.

The Board of Tax Appeals held that Eddie "Big Man" Jackson, 31, of Southfield, owed the state $1 million or four per cent of the $24 million he is alleged to have made selling heroin.

The state's 4 per cent sales tax applies to a wide range of consumer items, but this is believed to be the first time the state has called for a tax on illegal narcotics, a spokesman for the board said.

Forced Off Road, Robbed, Woman Tells Deputies

BUCHANAN — Mrs. Harvey (Katherine) Raber, 63, route 2, Buchanan, told Berrien sheriff's deputies from the Galien substation that her car was forced off the road east of here by another auto and that she had been robbed of $495 by three masked men early this morning.

Mrs. Raber told deputies she was on her way to work at the Simplicity Pattern plant in Niles when an automobile forced her car off the Galien-Buchanan road near High Bridge road in Buchanan township. Deputies said her car struck a utility pole.

Two masked men jumped from their car and pulled her into a nearby field, she told deputies. A third man, also masked, was following in a pickup truck and joined in the robbery, she said. She said the third man took the cash from her.

Manley Adds To Area Staff

CHESTERTON, Ind. — Manley Bros., which has a sand mining operation near Bridgman, has announced that Carl F. Taylor will join the firm's service staff as a troubleshooter for the southwestern Michigan operations of the company.

Taylor and his wife, Bonnie, are expected to move to the Stevensville area soon. They are the parents of four children. Taylor comes to Manley from Davenport, Iowa, where he was the plant superintendent of a foundry.

Trucker Breaks Leg In Crash

A truck driver who apparently fell asleep at the wheel and collided with another semi-truck was taken to Memorial hospital early this morning with a broken leg, state police of the Benton Harbor post reported.

Injured was Leo Miner, 49, of Galesburg, Ill. Troopers said he also was ticketed for careless driving. Driver of the other truck, Willie Williams, 44, of Detroit, suffered only bumps and bruises, police said. The accident occurred on I-94, west of Niles road in St. Joseph township.

ARRESTED IN CHICAGO: Harold Lee Rush, 30, left; Shelon Smith, 31, center; and Homer C. Crockett, 26, right, were arrested in Chicago Tuesday by FBI agents after a brief gun battle. The three are allegedly connected to bank robberies in Michigan. Crockett is an escapee from Milan, Mich., penitentiary, and Rush was paroled from the facility in February, 1974. Shelon Smith is believed to be the same woman sought in connection with a robbery early this year of the Ann Arbor, Mich., Federal Savings and Loan Association. (AP Wirephoto) insurance companies to reports to the state on demands for arbitration and settlements made. It also sets up an advisory committee on arbitration and directs the insurance commission to implement the arbitration measure.

Meanwhile, Gov. William Milliken signed into law another measure in the malpractice program. The bill would provide immunity from lawsuits for review committees and state agencies involved in health care.

The law is intended to encourage self-policing by the medical profession by protecting review groups against lawsuits from doctors they are investigating.

strike without economic penalties on either side. In all, this legislation would legalize five-week strikes at the expense of students and the general public.

"I do not believe this provides specific incentive to get the parties together before a strike occurs."

Milliken accused Democrats of surrendering to the "special interests that wrote" the bill — meaning teacher union organizations, notably the Michigan Education Association.

"What the House produced breaks faith with the people," Milliken said. "It does not cope with the problem."

Sen. David Plawewski, D-Deerborn Heights, said he is preparing amendments similar to Milliken's concerns. They would guarantee a certain decisions we had to make in the area of foreign policy," such as the Mayaguez incident and his recent European trip.

—Any additional increase in world oil prices by the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries would be "very disruptive and totally unacceptable," adding he still hopes Congress will approve measures to increase domestic production and make the nation less reliant on foreign oil.

—The U.S. reassessment of Middle East policy has not been concluded but the United States must prevent "a stalemate or stagnation because the longer we have no movement toward peace in the Middle East, the more likely we are to have war and all of its ill ramifications."

When he was asked if he would consider asking Congress to extend the tax cuts, which include $2.6 billion from an increase in the standard deduction, $5.2 billion from a $30-per-taxpayer credit and $1.5 billion for the so-called working poor, Ford said that depended on the economy.

"If the evidence shows that the tax reduction measures that were approved early this year were beneficial in moving the economy forward, and if we are convinced that the tax reductions would not create a deficit of a sizeable magnitude, more than we can afford, and if we have an economic situation that is not moving ahead and not improving, yes, I would consider recommending to the Congress that the tax reductions be extended for another year," he replied.

He said that he considers the current 9.2 per cent jobless rate and the possibility it will still be high next year "an unacceptable figure." But he also said his future decision on extending the tax cuts would also have to take into consideration the impact on inflation of a $20 billion increase in the federal deficit.

"I believe that we have made great strides in doing something about inflation," the President said. "I am optimistic that we can do something about more employment and less unemployment."

'Pirates' Plunder Boats At Marina

"Pirates" hit at least 15 boats at Whispering Willows Marina, Niles road, St. Joseph township, and escaped with an undetermined amount of loot after vandalizing the yachts, according to township police.

Police said the piracy occurred Tuesday night or early Wednesday. Owners of all of the boats had not been located this morning as police were trying to determine what was taken. It appeared that fishing tackle was the main target.

State police of the Benton Harbor post may have found some of the equipment taken from the boats in Riverview park, just a mile south of the marina. Recovered were several fishing poles and reels near the boat landing.

Damage to the boats included slashed canvas and smashed doors, police said.

Police were investigating the possibility that the pirates may have come by boat themselves.

tence she requested, ruling that she could not vote in Parliament, and this touched off vociferous new demands for her resignation.

"This is nothing to panic about," said Mrs. Gandhi in a nationwide broadcast today. "The forces of disintegration are in full poise and passions are being aroused, threatening our unity."

Mrs. Gandhi, who has ruled India since 1966, said her opponents have tried to undermine her government with a "deep and widespread conspiracy" over since she began introducing progressive economic and social measures after the split in her party five years ago.

"It is not important whether I am prime minister or not," she declared. "However, the institution of the prime minister is important, and a dangerous political attempt to denigrate it is not in the interests of democracy or of the nation."

Proclamation of the state of emergency gave the government power to arrest persons at will and to hold them in prison indefinitely without trial. Mrs. Gandhi said she hoped the situation would improve soon so that the decree could be lifted but she gave no indication how long it might remain in force.

States of emergency were declared in India in the past only in time of war: in 1962 during fighting with China and in December 1971 at the start of the war with Pakistan over Bangladesh.

The 1971 proclamation, which was directed against external aggression, is still in force, and Mrs. Gandhi has repeatedly rejected opposition demands that she lift it, contending that

Idyllic Lake Cruises Lost To Modern Era

Visiting South Haven Via Ship: A Treasured Memory

EDITOR'S NOTE: George Vargo of 1499 Jennings, Benton Harbor, is a former Great Lakes sailor whose avocation is writing maritime history. Following is one of a series of articles he has prepared for this newspaper.

By GEORGE VARGO, This side of Lake Michigan is still the great resort area, from Michigan City to the Straits of Mackinac. But not as it used to be in the early days of passenger boats.

The young generation will never know the sheer luxury of being able to relax in congenial surroundings whilst being conveyed to a dozen interesting ports along this side of Michigan.

There is little doubt that the ubiquitous motorcar has a great deal to answer for as far as the ship-lover is concerned. Things have changed a whole lot since those glorious days of the early 1900's and 20's when steamers came to South Haven, one of the finest resort towns which flourished in hospitality and goodwill.

The biggest thrill was to watch the boat launchings. Thousands came to view launches in the Black river. The colorful 4th of July parades had hundreds of horses and wagons lined up from the country to the Dunkley and Williams dance pavilion, where the City of South Haven, Iroquois, City of Kalamazoo, United States, Eastland, Soo City, City of St.

Joseph, Theodore Roosevelt and a score of other ships docked. Passenger boats lined the river all the way to the lake.

Just as did Benton Harbor, South had its big lake pavilion where the Elks, DAR and other conventions were held. Dancing was one of the biggest attractions and many a young man met his wife-to-be.

Many residents of Chicago and the midwest who spent their summers on the eastern shore of Lake Michigan, and vacationers and visitors to resorts of this area, traveled by lake steamers.

On most days five large steamers carrying happy excursionists, many with lunch baskets, sailed for Michigan City, St. Joseph, Benton Harbor and South Haven.

The early passenger steamers were of the William Transportation Co. H.W. Williams and City of Kalamazoo comprised the local fleet. Then other lines came to South Haven and it became one of the largest passenger ports on this side of Lake Michigan.

Trains came from Battle Creek, Detroit, Fort Wayne and Kalamazoo. Crowds overflowed the beaches, and it seems as though all folks from the cities descended on the town. Those were "Happy Days," as any old timer will tell you.

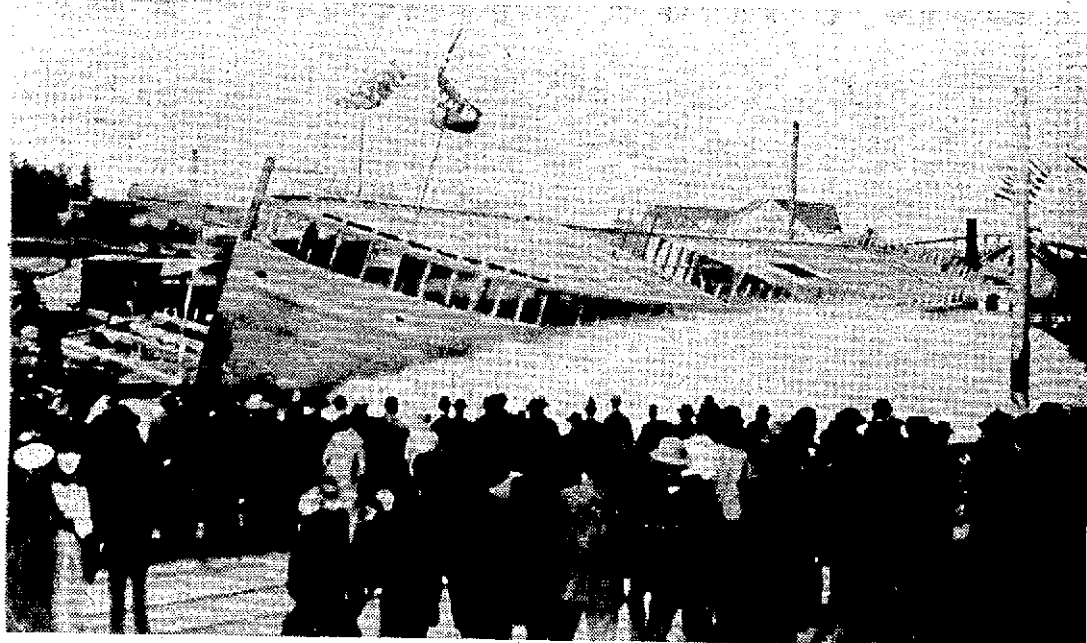

Has the younger generation more pleasure today? It seems hard to believe, as we pick up a newspaper with its tragedy, car wrecks, speed, and violence. We may have been slow "old fogies," as they tell you today, but compare the pleasure and times we had. Sure we worked and went to church and were blessed with enough work and pleasure we worked for. There were no hot rods, buses or trucks. Everybody rode trains, streetcars and boats.

The P.M. had a "cattle train" we used to call Hartford to South Haven and it had one coach, two lumber cars and one or two coal cars. Passengers from Grand Rapids or Chicago were dropped off at Hartford and transferred to the "Cattle train" to go to South Haven. It made about 5 to 10 miles an hour over snaky curves and through fruit orchards. Passengers could pick apples, peaches, cherries and plums on their way to the big town on Lake Michigan.

In later years many actors and vaudevillians spent their summers here. Among them were Martha Raye and scores of other celebrities.

Fishing was a great sport, and many a fisherman came home with stringers of 80 to 100 to display to home folks. Those were the days when the big pavilion on the lake had conventions and everyone stood at attention when the old favorite dancing tunes commenced. "Suzzana," Sousa's Marches, "Take Me Out To The Ballgame" and many others.

People rode motor launches

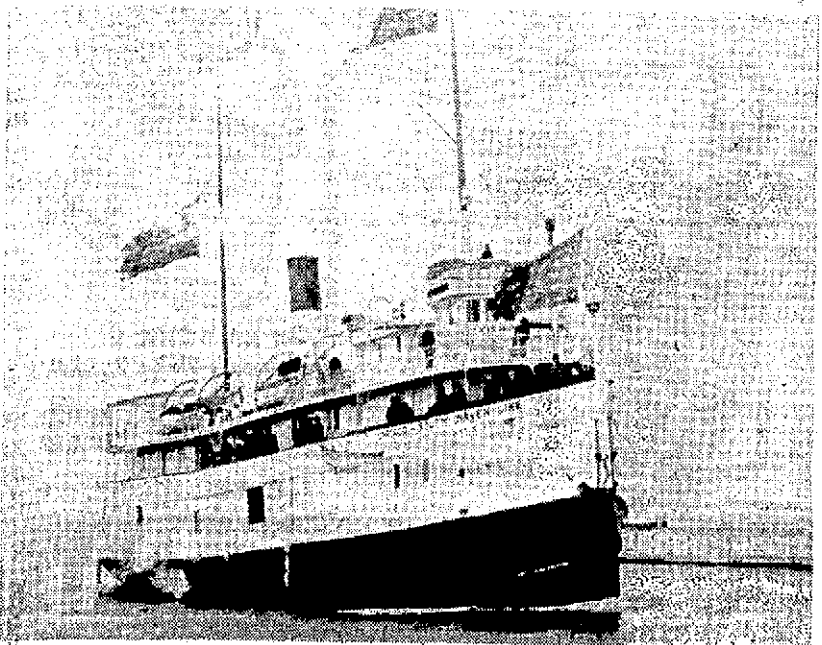

LAUNCHING: Sun-drenched crowd watches white water boil as hull of H.W. Williams is launched into Black river in South Haven in this photo of bygone days in Van Buren county city. South Haven was from 1900 to 1920's busy center of shipping and terminal for railroads that brought cargo and passengers to its Lake Michigan shores. Boat launchings were a spectacle that drew crowds from up and down Lake Michigan coastline.

SUNDAY OUTING: Passengers on Sunday boat trip up and down Lake Michigan on lumber hooker Glenn are shielded from sun by tarp, while others line bow as steamer makes ready to dock in South Haven. Weekend steamship rides were way of life in early part of this century. The automobile hastened demise of large-boat passenger services.

ONE OF FIRST: Steamer City of Kalamazoo was one of first large boats to use South Haven harbor as docking port in hauling passengers, mail and cargo across Lake Michigan. It was among boats that lined river at South Haven out to lake shores during peak of city's trade and passenger industry. City of Kalamazoo was part of Dunkley and Williams line.

GALA TIMES: Crowds line South Haven dock, dance pavilion stairs and decks of City of South Haven as prelude to gala weekend celebration in this photo taken in early part of this century. City of South Haven was among number of steamers that carried passengers and cargo on Lake Michigan waters. Boat was steel, single screw excursion steamer built in 1903 at Toledo for Dunkley and Williams company of Chicago. Dubbed "White Flyer of Lake Michigan," boat hauled cargo on Atlantic in World War I and returned to Lake Michigan in 1923. Idled in 1930's, she was virtually destroyed by fire that swept her while docked in Sturgeon Bay in 1936.

up the Black river all day. From 3 to 6 offered rides on a beautiful cruise up toward Bangor and back. On Lake Michigan the lumber hooker Glenn hauled people on excursions 10 miles and beyond. A tarp was stretched over the hatches and chairs or standing room was available for a cool ride on a hot Sunday. Wagonloads of fruit were hauled to the boats which hauled it to Chicago, Milwaukee and Racine, Wis.

"And whatever became of those beautiful boats?" Most popular was the City of South Haven steel single-screw excursion steamer built in 1903 at Toledo for Dunkley and Williams Co., Chicago. She was 260 feet long, very fast and a good sea boat. She was called the "White Flyer of Lake Michigan." Her route was between South Haven and Chicago, carrying excursionists and large cargoes of fruit. She sailed on the Atlantic for the U.S. Shipping Board during World War I, and from 1920 to 1922 from Miami to Havana as the City of Miami. Returned to Lake Michigan in 1923, she ran out of Milwaukee as the E.G. Crosby. She lay idle in the early Thirties at Sturgeon Bay, where she was all but destroyed by fire in 1936.

Plans were afoot to rebuild her during War II but did not materialize and she was broken up in the early Forties. Throughout her long career her appearance was little changed.

The Theodore Roosevelt single-screw steel excursion steamer built at Toledo had a length of 289 feet. Triple expansion engines of 5,000 horsepower drove the ship at a top speed of 24 miles per hour. She resembled the City of South Haven, the Iroquois and propeller Chippewa. During War I she was an officers' training ship. She sailed out of Detroit, Benton Harbor, South Haven, Michigan City, on Lake Erie, and Milwaukee. She lay idle in the Benton Harbor canal for many months till scrapped at Milwaukee in 1960.

The Iroquois was another one of those ships which hauled passengers to South Haven, and her days ended on the Pacific coast. The City of Kalamazoo ended with the Crawford Transportation Co.

The summers were hot, 90 to 100 degrees, throughout the season. South Haven as the unspoiled city on the east shore of Lake Michigan.

Band concerts were in full swing during the season, with no fandalism in force. Dumping doughboy statues was not on the agenda for youth in those days. We all stuck together.

The lake at South Haven draws big crowds, but not like in the old days. Many resorts have been closed for years, but memories linger on for those who built the city and gave all toward a better place to live in their older days.

It was the spirit of understanding and goodwill that made South Haven what it is. From the canneries, banks, farmers, steamship lines, merchants of the town, piano and foundry industries; the churches and schools which developed good citizens; not forgetting the shipyards and fishermen.

Top CIA Plotters May Remain Hidden

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate intelligence committee might never be able to determine where orders to assassinate Cuban Premier Fidel Castro originated, according to Chairman Frank Church.

"It may just be we'll be unable to find evidence that establishes the chain of command," Church, a Democrat from Idaho, said Wednesday following five hours of closed-door testimony by a former CIA officer allegedly involved in plots to kill Castro.

Meanwhile, Atty. Gen. Edward H. Levi declared Wednesday that he was shocked at reading still-secret material on alleged CIA assassination and domestic-intelligence activities and that he hoped Justice Department decisions on whether to prosecute the individuals involved could be made quickly.

Levi declined to say what had shocked him, saying that was a personal question. He has been given the confidential portion of the Rockefeller Commission report dealing with assassinations and the back-up material to the report's conclusions about other CIA activities.

He also said the department, not the White House, would make the decisions about whether to prosecute.

"I would feel obligated to inform the President, but I would not expect the President to tell the department what to do," he said.

In another development Wednesday, CIA Director William E. Colby declined to assure a House subcommittee that the CIA no longer has undercover agents operating inside organizations within the United States. But Colby insisted that any such activities would be strictly for the purpose of gathering foreign intelligence and would fall within the limits of the agency's statutory authority.

Colby also said 30 of the 75 present members of Congress revealed by the Rockefeller Commission to be subjects of CIA files have had the contents of their files turned over to them at their request.

Colby said the files were kept because in some cases the members of congress had cooperated in giving the CIA information and in other cases security checks had been made on them or employment information compiled about them before they were elected.

But subcommittee chairman Bella Abzug, D-N.Y., said she had seen several of the files and they contained mostly information about antiwar activities.

The Church committee spent all Wednesday questioning William K. Harvey about his role in alleged plots on Castro's life. According to columnist Jack Anderson, mobster John Rosselli, who testified before the committee Tuesday, has identified Harvey as the CIA officer in charge of plans to kill Castro during the period following the aborted 1961 Bay of Pigs invasion.

Church refused to discuss Harvey's testimony except to say that "he filled out the story further." But Church added that the question of whether government officials above the CIA in the chain of command were involved in the plot "remains very confusing."

Church repeated an earlier statement that the committee has uncovered "no evidence linking these assassination plots to former presidents."

INCLUDES PRIVATE INDUSTRY

Ford Offers Uranium Plan

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Ford is asking Congress to permit private industry to produce and sell billions of dollars worth of enriched uranium needed for nuclear power plants around the world.

Ford called members of the Senate-House Committee on Atomic Energy to the Cabinet Room for a meeting today to outline his far-reaching proposals. Then he planned a formal signing ceremony for a special message to Congress detailing his ideas.

By law, the production of enriched uranium — a type of fuel suited for power plants but not for weapons — has been a government monopoly since the dawn of the nuclear age some 30 years ago.

Ford's decision to seek legislation to put private enterprise into the uranium fuel business seemed certain to stir a spirited debate on whether private firms — who do much of the work now under government contracts — can be trusted to have a larger stake in this growing industry.

Under Ford's plan, the federal government would continue to own and operate the three existing plants that produce enriched uranium, in Oak Ridge, Tenn., Paducah, Ky., and Portsmouth, Ohio, sources said.

Federal officials calculate that these three plants already have contracted to sell their total output far into the future.

With the government urging the construction of more nuclear power plants to help curb the nation's appetite for foreign oil as a power source, sources said Ford would have private owners build and operate all future enrichment plants.

It was understood that the President's decision was spurred by the fact that present facilities cannot meet anticipated future demand for power plant uranium here and overseas.

It was believed that Ford's decision hinged largely on two factors:

—A desire to avoid heavy federal investments in new plants that, until sizeable sales were generated, would add to federal deficit spending.

—A presidential philosophy that would prefer to have private firms operate what amounts to a business enterprise rather than involve the federal government more deeply in such activities.

As outlined, the administration would hope to see the building of new enriched uranium plants financed entirely by private capital.

It was understood, however, that the government, if Congress approves, would provide guarantees to private industry until commercial operations got under way.

The Energy Research and Development Administration, which oversees the three existing plants, reported sales of $421 million in foreign markets alone last year. Federal officials expect such exports to mount into the billions by 1980, in addition to sales to domestic utilities.

FBI Agent Says Indiana Girl's Kidnap Story Was Hoax

An FBI agent at the Benton Harbor office said an Indiana girl's story about being kidnaped was "confirmed this morning as a hoax."

Special Agent Dean Phelps said the girl, Susan Boer, 22, of Merrillville, Ind., told agents she and her boyfriend fabricated the story when the newspaper to her hometown reported she was missing.

Phelps said she admitted the hoax when confronted with information conflicting with the story she originally told to state police at the Benton Harbor post Monday night.

She came into the post and told police she had been abducted Friday morning in Edwardsville, Ill., about 350 miles from Benton Harbor, and held four days by two men in a cruising red van. She reported they released her near Scottsdale on US-31 and directed her to the police post.

Phelps said a friend saw her in a van with a man known to be her boyfriend some three hours after the kidnaping allegedly took place.

Miss Boer told police she had been visiting her sister in Edwardsville, which was true, Phelps said, but she apparently left there with her boyfriend.

Phelps said he did not know the boyfriend's name.

Phelps said evidence in the hoax was being presented to the U.S. Attorney's office in Grand Rapids which could file charges of giving false information to a federal officer, a violation of federal statutes. Benton Harbor state police also said they had turned over evidence to the Berrien prosecutor which could result in a "high misdemeanor" charge of filing a false statement to police.

GROWING TOGETHER: Hoeing crops in their truck garden are several of the dozen youths, sponsored by the Berrien County Department of Social Services. Youths are wards of state. Ten-acre plot was loaned by Twin Cities Area Development Corporation and is in eastern portion of Pipestone Industrial park, off Yore avenue, Benton township. Youths hope to sell produce to raise money for similar project next year. Social Services department's board provided $600 to purchase plants and fertilizer and hire initial plowing. A CETA (comprehensive employment training act) federal grant provides pay for youths, $2.10 per hour for 12 weeks. Benton Harbor high school vocational-agricultural department provided tools. Produce will include tomatoes, corn, beans, and other vegetables. Project is headed by Social Services department officials, Marc Delmariani, intake specialist, and Arthur Kolberg, employment specialist. (Staff photo)

Man Wounded In Stabbing; Police Arrest Woman, 60

A Benton Harbor man was admitted to Mercy hospital Wednesday night with a stab wound and city police arrested a 60-year-old woman in connection with the incident.

Benard Jordan, 58, of 515 1/2 Whitcomb court, was listed in "fair" condition with a wound in the lower back area.

Booked at the Berrien jail on a charge of assault with a deadly weapon was Bertha Patton, also of 515 1/2 Whitcomb. Police confiscated a kitchen knife with a four-inch blade.

A Benton Harbor woman told city police she was beaten with a chain as she was walking to her home early Thursday morning.

Gayetta Whitney, 425 Washington street, said three women jumped her and hit her about the face, head and body with a small chain. She was treated and released from Mercy hospital. A man with her who said he tried to intervene, told police he was jumped by a man who bit him on the forehead. Harry Brown, 425 Washington was released from Mercy after treatment.

Charles Nolton, 3844 Bundy road, Hagar township, told Berrien sheriff's deputies a gas outdoor grill and lawn furniture, valued at more than $250, were stolen from his home.

Alma Harden, 784 East Washington street, reported the theft of a color television set from her house to Benton Harbor police. It was valued at about $200.

Barb Lute, 77 Monroe, South Haven, told Benton township police someone took her purse from a shopping cart while she was putting packages into her car parked in the Fairplain Plaza lot. In the purse she said were a check book, credit cards and $39 in cash.

Benton Harbor police arrested David Fusc, 38, of 138 Apple avenue, Wednesday night on a charge of gambling. He was released after posting $100 bond.

Police said they saw several men shooting dice in the 400 block of Territorial street. Dice and $14 in cash were confiscated.

St. Joseph township police said a concession stand at Eaton park, Lincoln avenue, south of the City of St. Joseph, was broken into and vandalized sometime Tuesday night or early Wednesday.

A carton of pop appeared to be all that was missing, but a bench outside the stand was broken and the restrooms were vandalized. There was no damage estimate, police indicated.

Yul Remembers The Bad Days

By BOB THOMAS
Associated Press Writer
LOS ANGELES (AP) — Recently the show world was amused when Variety published Yul Brynner's instructions to theater personnel during his nationwide tour with the new musical, "Odyssey."

Among the lengthy orders: "King-size bed in master (hotel) bedroom (one mattress only, not two). Must be utterly blacked out so as not a sliver of light can enter, though must be able to open them when wanted."

"Suite must be immaculate A gross of extra wooden hangers in YB's bedroom, and extras in all other rooms of his party All phones must be Touch Tone with 13-foot cords Wine. The only one he drinks is Chateau Grand-Larose '66 Mr. Brynner brings with him special Canadian bacon. Make sure he can put some of it in the hotel's freezer, and the balance will go in his own kitchen"

No one got more amusement out of the reaction to the list than Brynner himself. Backstage at the Ahmanson Theater where "Odyssey" has started a long summer's run, he remarked: "I understand that Peter Cook and Dudley Moore, who are following me in theaters across the country, have a hilarious routine about it. I'd love to hear it."

"I should explain why I made up these instructions. When I was touring in 'The King and I,' I was working for very little money and playing split-weeks that were enormously tiring. When I arrived at the theater, I found my dressing room was dirty and shabby. The squalor was unbelievable. 'I existed backstage under the most depressing surroundings, then it was my job to go onstage and bring happiness to hundreds, thousands of people."

"Now I have committed myself to 20 months of 'Odyssey,' taking the time from film work and the house in Normandy that I love. Is it any wonder that I want to make my life as pleasant as possible?" "Odyssey" is well-named. It has been on a cross-country journey in search of a way to present the Homer epic as a musical comedy.

"The show is 85 per cent changed from when we opened in Cleveland last December," said the smooth-headed star. "Now it is just about the way it will be for Broadway. We'll add a song for Joan Diener to sing after the prologue and make a few other changes here and in San Francisco. Otherwise, this is it."

Critics have not been kind to "Odyssey," Brynner admitted, and he attributes the knocks to a pair of causes:

"1. You're always in trouble when you try to adapt a classic. The critics don't bother to reread the classic, and they attack you for reasons that aren't valid. 2. The fact that Erich Segal wrote the script causes an automatic adverse reaction. Why? Because he made such an ass of himself after 'Love Story,' trying to act like a star."

"People have the wrong idea about 'Odyssey.' For instance, Kirk Douglas came backstage and said, 'Gee, I played Ulysses in a picture, and this wasn't anything like I expected.' As I say in the prologue, 'Odyssey' is the story of the final voyage of Ulysses. We started out trying to cover Circe, Calypso, the Sirens and the other adventures, but it didn't work. The show was too heavy, and we meant it to be a light entertainment. So we concentrated on Ulysses' return home."

"It works. The audience comes out enchanted, and I've had people outside the stage door tell me, 'We just want to shake your hand for bringing us laughter when we need it most.' We've had standing ovations in every city — even Los Angeles."

BRINGING LAUGHTER: Yul Brynner and Diana Davila have scenes like this in the new stage musical "Odyssey" — a show the actor says leaves the audience "enchanted." Brynner says the play, about the final voyage of Ulysses, has caused spectators to shake his hand "for bringing us laughter when we need it most." (AP Wirephoto)

To Sell Stock

DETROIT (AP) — Detroit Edison Co. has filed plans with the Securities and Exchange Commission for a July 15 offering of 1.6 million shares of preferred stock at $25 a share, company officials announced Wednesday.

Ex-Quarterback Makes Right Call

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Jim Weatherly gave up a possible career in professional football and moved to Los Angeles to try his luck at performing and songwriting.

The former Ole Miss quarterback had just about had his fill of one-night club dates and was considering returning to the gridiron as a high school coach when his songwriting career suddenly took off.

During the 2½ years he was under contract to television star Jim Nabors, Weatherly wrote some 60 songs. But it was an afternoon telephone conversation with a friend's wife that was the inspiration for a song which gave him a solid footing in the music industry.

The title was "Midnight Plane to Houston," which Gladys Knight's producers later changed to "Midnight Train to Georgia" because, according to Weatherly, it had more of a black sound.

After that, Gladys Knight and the Pips made Weatherly's "Neither One of Us Wants to Be the First to Say Goodbye" which turned into a pop-soul hit. They then followed with a million-selling version of "You're the Best Thing That Ever Happened to Me" after Ray Price moved the song to the No. 1 spot on the country charts in 1973.

"Midnight Train to Georgia" came about when I called this friend in L.A., and his wife answered and said she was taking a midnight plane to Houston," Weatherly said.

"She had done some acting and the way she said it made it so real I just conjured up this story in my mind about an actress who never quite makes it, and about a guy who loves her so much that he leaves his whole world to be with her."

He said he originally wrote the song as a ballad and that he feels a lot of the story was lost in the way it was recorded. "You're listening to so many things, like the track, the whistle in the background; but the song itself is romantic."

Weatherly, from Pontotoc, Miss., didn't set out to make his mark in rhythm & blues. He said he likes to think of himself as a writer of universal songs.

Several of them have been recorded by Price and other country singers such as Bill Anderson and Bob Luman and by easy listening types such as Andy Williams, Jose Feliciano and Ferrante & Teicher.

But he admits his songs lend themselves particularly to performers like Gladys Knight.

"I didn't do it consciously, but now when I analyze those songs, I see that there is a lot of space for interpretation. The songs are written so that a performer is not locked to the meter or beat."

"That's what I think is there: success in rhythm & blues. R & B artists feel their music; they may sing a little bit behind the beat or suddenly rush ahead of it and then pause."

Lawrence Plans Symbol Contest

Teens Find Price Of Ice Cream High

Two Benton township teens found out how expensive ice cream can be yesterday in Berrien Fifth District court when they and two other young men were charged with theft from a McDonald's dairy truck.

Receiving identical sentences each of paying $121 in court costs and fines or spending 30 days in jail were Brian K. Penn, 17, of 1555 Empire avenue and Brian K. Hopkins, 18, of 132 Concord street.

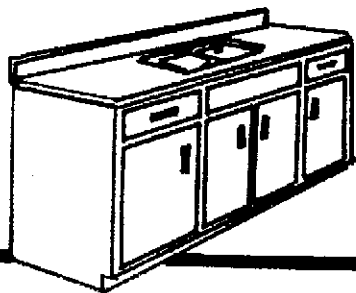

The two pleaded guilty to charges of larceny under $100. They were two of four young men arrested Tuesday by state police from the Benton Harbor post shortly after about two dozen ice cream sandwiches were taken from the truck parked at the dairy at 1330 East Empire avenue, Benton township.

Two others appeared in district court yesterday on the same charges in connection with the same incident. Pleading innocent were Nesbitt Clayton, 20, of 1084 Highland avenue and Elvert D. Leonard, 17, of 131 Concord drive, both Benton township.

Clayton was released on $1,000 bond while Leonard was jailed when he failed to put up the same bond.

Britons, Austrians Agree On Red Success Factors

LONDON (AP) — Several leading British and Austrian newspapers agreed that Communist successes in the Italian local elections reflected voter dissatisfaction with the ruling Christian Democrats.

In London, The Guardian wrote: "The main reason for the Communists' success must be that they come to the voters with clean hands, whereas the Christian Democrats, aging in office, have cut many corners, rewarded many friends and have administered the country in ways which have recently been less than admirable." "The electors may be said to have served notice that they will not flinch from propelling the Communists into power if the Christian Democrats are unable or unwilling to change their spots," said the Times of London.

Vienna's Der Kurier said the Communist victory "was handed out to the Christian Democrats for 30 years of mismanagement, missed reforms, deterioration of state authority, constant crisis, chaos and corruption. It was certainly the wish for something entirely new, something of a future guidance, something able to stop the abuses of the past."

Arbeiterzeitung, the organ of Austria's ruling Socialist party wrote: "The Communists are profiting by increasing annoyance toward the Christian Democrats ... which now quite without reason has to pay the bill for Italy's difficulties and stored up problems. Although the party continues to be Italy's biggest, Communist and Socialist advances will make it difficult for it to govern in the future."

But the London Daily Telegraph said one reason for the "upsurge of communism in Italy is endemic in Western Europe. This is the acceptance of Russian 'detente' propaganda at its face value. ... Portugal is sliding deeper into confusion which the minority Communists know best how to exploit; self-inflicted wounds by Turkey ... and also in Greece open NATO's southern flank further. NATO could not survive Italy's defection on top of all this."

WON'T ACCEPT DRAFT

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Edward M. Kennedy says that even if the 1976 Democratic convention appeared to be tilting toward Alabama Gov. George C. Wallace, he would not accept a draft for his party's presidential nomination.

Army Research Called Inhumane

EDGEWOOD, Md. (AP) — "It's my opinion that what's going on here is not humane," the president of the Hareford County Humane Society said during a tour of the Army's animal research facility at Edgewood Arsenal.

"The dogs are kept in small areas, with inadequate exercise facilities. Many of the cages have wire grates for floors and open drain pipes which could catch an animal's paw or leg," said Warren Brodrick.

Cher's Heart Belongs To 'Replacement'

Q: So, if it isn't Sonny or Dave Goffen for Cher, who is she interested in? — M.R., St. Louis, Mo.

A: The music gossip experts claim her heart momentarily belongs to Bill Hudson, eldest of the Hudson Brothers group who were the Sonny and Cher summer replacement last year.

QUESTION YOU NEVER ASKED: Why hasn't Washington's top reporter team Woodward and Bernstein interviewed President Ford? Well, crack journalist Alex Cockburn says they tried and got turned down. On the other hand, Robert Redford, who will play Woodward in the movie, "All the President's Men," received a two-hour visit with the President.

Q: How come Sinatra bombed so badly on his recent European tour? — J.N., Chattanooga, Tenn.

A: Sinatra cut short his Berlin schedule but his concerts were a smash in England where even his toughest critics adored him and tickets were scalped at huge prices. The Berlin fiasco was partly poor planning, but remember that Sinatra was largely unknown in Hitler's Germany of the 30s and 40s and they don't understand the English lyrics anyhow.

British leading lady and her he-man. Of course they're both married but then what else is new? The hitch is — her husband is furious. He had planned to dump her and thought better of it. Now she's dumped him.

Q: Was Karen Black ever married? — L.L., Mandelieu, Ill.

A: She has been married and divorced and plans to marry freelance writer Kit Carson on the Fourth of July. Karen met Kit when he went to interview her in Los Angeles this winter. She called him the next day and they've been together ever since including on film location in Vienna. Carson has been missing his magazine deadlines lately but maybe that doesn't matter anymore.

Q: After seeing Ann-Margret in "Tommy" I guess she's completely recovered from her

Las Vegas accident. — D.C., Newport, R.I.

A: She says it still hurts a little when she laughs and claims

How to help your boy on collection day!

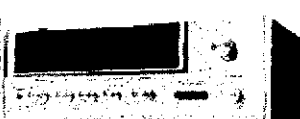

When your carrierboy comes to collect, please make sure you're ready. With the right change, if possible, he'll appreciate it with a broad smile and a "Thank you". You see, because he is in business for himself, your appreciation depends on the full collection of his route for his full profit. Repeat could mean extra work with no extra profit. So—give the boy a break. And thanks!

Nearly 1 In 5 Households Need Help, Study Shows

By ALAN AREND
Staff Writer

LANSING — A report of Michigan housing needs by the Market Analysis section of the Michigan State Housing Development Authority showed TEACHER RETIRES: Miss Maxine Alden, teacher in the Lawton school system for 27 years, has retired. Miss Alden has total of 37 years in education, teaching for 10 years in one-room schoolhouses in Pine Grove and Paw Paw townships in Van Buren county and at Bloomingdale before moving to Lawton in 1948. She has served as a classroom and remedial reading teacher and as elementary supervisor at Lawton.

Cass Blood Pressure Tests Listed

CASSOPOLIS — The July schedule for free blood pressure screening clinics offered jointly by the Cass Council on Aging and the Cass Health department, has been announced.

All clinics will be conducted from 10 a.m. until noon. Those who may need a ride to the clinics may call either agency for aid.

The schedule is: Edwardsburg, July 2, Methodist church; Union area, July 3, Mason township hall; Sister Lakes area, July 10, Lions club; Dowagiac, July 15, Southwestern Michigan college building; 725 North Front street; Marcellus, July 18, Hudson Memorial building; and Cassopolis and Vandalia, July 25, St. Ann's Social hall, Cassopolis.

Class Gives Profits To Aid Agency

A "corporation" made up of sixth grade social studies students recently donated their profits of $100 to the Berrien County Cancer Service, Inc.

Lakeshore Plaques and Pictures, formed by students from Lakeshore's Stewart elementary school, worked four weeks making wall plaques, straw flowers, decorated rocks and miniature terrariums. They donated the profits from sales of their products to the county cancer service at the end of the school year June 10.

Mary Jane Johnson, Stewart social studies teacher, said the business was set up as part of a study on corporations. Shares of stock were sold to finance the company, she said, and the company was operated like a real one — with stock sales, assembly lines, advertising and sales.

The social studies students had voted that the county cancer service was their choice as a charity to donate the profits, Mrs. Johnson said.

Hiss Can View Pumpkin Papers

WASHINGTON (AP) — Alger Hiss has won the right to examine the so-called "Pumpkin Papers" which figured in his perjury conviction in connection with an espionage case 25 years ago.

Atty. Gen. Edward H. Levi said Wednesday that Hiss and three researchers will be given copies of the records — actually five rolls of microfilm — after officials review the material on national security grounds to see if anything should be withheld.

that 517,500, or 18 per cent of the state's households are in need of housing assistance.

A breakdown of the housing needs for the state recently appeared in the May "Newsletter" of the authority.

Housing needs were based on three categories: structurally inadequate dwellings, overcrowding, and high rent burden.

For southwestern Michigan counties, the inventory showed that of Berrien county's 53,476 households, 5,635 or 10.5 per cent were found to be structurally inadequate; 4,332 or 8.1 per cent overcrowded; and 1,230 or 2.3 per cent as high rent burdens.

Van Buren county, according to the report, has 19,739 households, of which 5,335 or 27 per cent were found to be structurally inadequate; 1,579 or 8 per cent overcrowded; and 395 or 2 per cent high rent burdens.

Of Cass county's 13,856 households, 1,282 or 9.4 per cent were found to be structurally inadequate; 1,147 or 8.4 per cent overcrowded; and 218 or 1.6 per cent high rent burdens.

Of Allegan county's 22,004 households, 4,628 or 21 per cent were found to be structurally inadequate; 1,848 high rent burdens.

Structurally inadequate dwellings are those defined by the Census Bureau classification as dilapidated or lacking some or all plumbing facilities or having marginal or no heating systems.

Overcrowded dwellings are those which, by authority definition, have more than one person per room, excluding foyers, bathrooms, utility rooms, attics, basements.

High rent burden exists if a renter under age 65 and making less than $10,000 spends more than 25 per cent of its income on rent. Single individuals of any age and elderly families over 65 are in the high rent category, if rent exceeds 35 per cent of income.

Statewide, the analysis — based on 1970 census data updated to 1974 using methodology developed by the Joint Center for Urban Studies of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology and Harvard university — shows that 30 per cent of the state's 503,000 rural households and 15.5 per cent of the 2.4 million urban households are in need of assistance.

The greatest relative need is found in rural counties where 25 per cent of households are occupying structurally inadequate units. This large number stems primarily from the presence of marginal heating systems and a surprisingly large number of units which lack some or all plumbing facilities.

While rural counties (Allegan and Cass were considered rural in the report, while Berrien and Van Buren were not) have only 17 per cent of the state's total households, they have 40 per cent of the state's structurally inadequate dwellings.

Of all overcrowded units in the state, the report said, 18 per cent are in rural counties. This is in line with the percentage of rural population and disputes the theory that overcrowding is solely a city problem.

Only 4.5 per cent of the state's high rent burden households are in rural counties, attributable to the fact that only 1 to 2 per cent of rural households are renters compared to 7 to 10 per cent in urban counties, the report said.

A Special Bicentennial Issue: Close-Up Look At Some Great Americans by Actors Who Helped immortalize Them

Stars' Versions Of Great Americans

This week's Family Weekly devotes itself to our upcoming Bicentennial with a salute to America's past and the men who made it great. We interviewed a number of renowned stage and screen actors and actresses who have played such outstanding figures as Harry Truman, Abraham Lincoln and Will Rogers to get their opinion on the secret of greatness and genius.

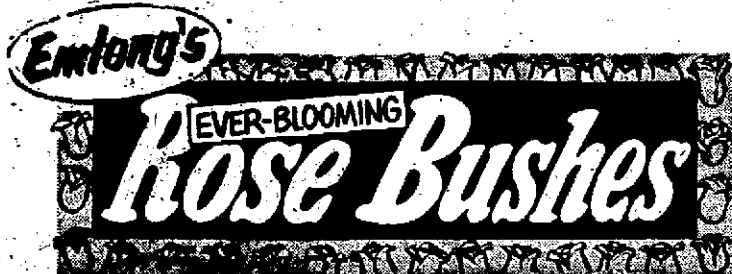

You'll find this novel approach far more insightful than a strictly historical perspective. You'll learn why Cliff Robertson feels that none of JFK's successors had his ability or wit; why Don Ameche believes that Alexander Graham Bell would scoff at America's reliance on the telephone. See Ginger Rogers' remarks on a fellow ice cream lover, Dolly Madison. It's a cover story that will make you proud to be an American.

Read it Saturday in Family Weekly magazine, a regular feature of The Herald-Palladium.

Colonial Art Developed Slowly

By DONALD SANDERS
Associated Press Writer

The fine arts developed slowly in colonial America, adhering to the styles of Europe as they did so, but reaching an early flowering about the time of the Revolution.

The colonies lacked royal patronage, an established church, and a rich aristocracy, the traditional sources of support for the arts in Europe.

Two Win Degrees In Indiana

ANDERSON, Ind. — Two southwestern Michigan students received degrees this month from Anderson college here, according to a college spokesman.

Graduating were Karen Dunham, of Berrien Springs, with an associate of science degree, and Connie Haffstrom Johnson, formerly of Stevensville, with a bachelor of arts degree.

AIRCRAFT FIRM SUED
NEW YORK (AP) — The Lockheed Aircraft Corp. has been sued for $1.5 billion by the daughter of a passenger on a CSA cargo jet that crashed while evacuating Vietnamese orphans last April.

There were no public art galleries, no art schools, no private collections of any scope. Further, there was virtually no distinction between fine arts and crafts, and the more sophisticated artisans had no prestige.

"The Plow-Man that raises Grain, is more serviceable to Mankind, than the Painter who draws only to please the Eye," one early New Englander wrote.

"The Carpenter who builds a good House, to defend us from Wind and Weather, is more serviceable than the curious Carver, who employs his Art to please the Fancy."

John Adams wrote: "The age of painting and sculpture has not yet arrived in this country, and I hope it will not arrive very soon. Artists have done what they could with my face and eyes, head and shoulders, stature and figure, and they have made them monsters fit for exhibition as harlequin or clown."

But it also was Adams who said: "I must study politics and war that my sons may have the liberty to study mathematics and philosophy ... in order to give their children a right to study painting, poetry and music."

John Singleton Copley, one of the busiest, best and wealthiest of the painters in the colonies, complained on the eve of the Revolution that "people regarded painting no more than any other useful trade, ... like that of a carpenter, tailor, shoemaker, not as one of the most noble arts in the world."

This may well have been because the country's first artists remain all but nameless — limners, as they were known, who painted likenesses of colonial personalities in flat, primitive style. Some were itinerants, but others were undoubtedly practical artisans who lent their limited talents to such painting jobs as came their way.

The first painters of stature came here from Europe. One was John Smibert, a Scot, who came in 1729 and held in Boston the first-known art exhibit in this country. Another was Peter Pelham, a competent engraver in mezzotint, from London. And there was Gustavus Hesselius, who arrived from Sweden in 1712.

It is ironic that the two artists of greatest stature at the time of the Revolution spent most of their careers in London. One was Copley, who lived from 1738-1815; the other was Benjamin West, 1738-1820. Both were largely self-taught.

Legend has it that West did his first paintings by snipping hairs off the family cat and drawing them through quills to make brushes. A Philadelphia Quaker, he left America in 1760 at the age of 22, spent three years in Italy and then went on to London.

He had reached the top of his profession by then, was named historical painter to King George III, and enjoyed royal favor for years, even during the Revolution.

Copley became wealthy as a painter in Boston. John Adams said of his portraits: "You can scarcely help discoursing with them, asking questions and receiving answers."

At the urging of Sir Joshua Reynolds, West and others, Copley sailed from America in 1774, and finally settled in London after a year in Italy.

Both he and West aspired to go beyond portraiture, doing historical and other paintings. Neither ever returned home, although West and his wife never got over their homesickness. Mrs. West even tried to grow corn in her greenhouse, but with little success.

West was free with advice, and his home became a school for Americans — Charles Willson Peale, Matthew Pratt, John Trumbull, Ralph Earl, Rembrandt Peale, Samuel F.B. Morse, Washington Allston and Gilbert Stuart.

Stuart, whose portraits of George Washington are famous, was one of the most interesting of the lot — errant, witty, a drinker.

After studying with West, he set up his own studio in London but had to leave for Dublin to escape debtors' prison. He owed 80 pounds for snuff alone. He was the son of a Rhode Island snuff grinder and he used it literally all his life.

Soon he had to leave Dublin for the same reasons, and he returned to America in 1792, when he was 37. He claimed he came back to paint Washington, who did sit for him three times, reluctantly.

The most famous of the three paintings is the athenaeum portrait, an engraving of which adorns the dollar bill. Stuart made more than 70 copies of it, selling one whenever he needed money. His daughter said that near the end of his life Stuart could dash one off in two hours.

Among Stuart's contemporaries were Thomas Sully, whose record books showed that he painted 2,631 pictures before his death at 89, and John Trumbull, who served briefly on Washington's staff but left in a huff over a minor error in the dating of his commission.

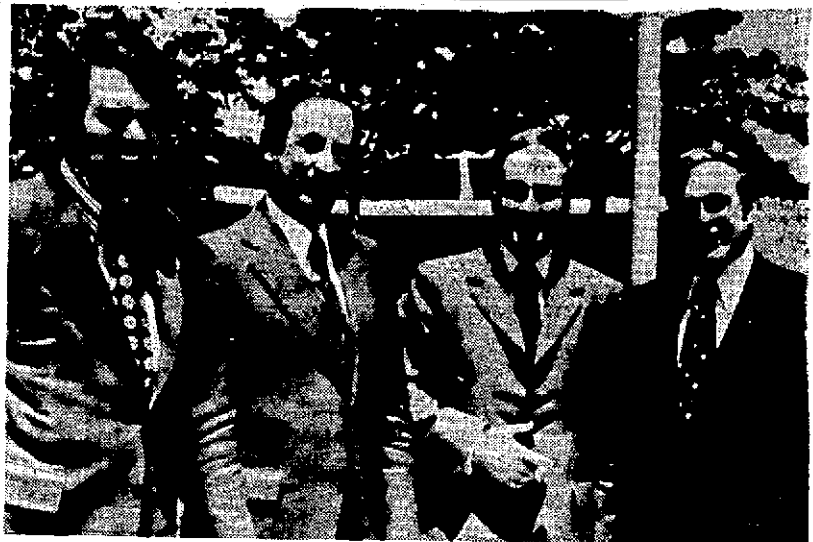

Trumbull went to London, studied under West, and then with Thomas Jefferson's encouragement embarked on a series of paintings of 12 notable episodes in the history of the creation of the new nation.

There was no sculpture in the colonies as the term is now recognized, but there was a great deal of carving — tombstones, ships' figureheads, portraits in wood, plaster and terra cotta.

EDITOR'S NOTE — The two American artists of greatest stature at the time of the Revolution — John Singleton Copley and Benjamin West — spent most of their careers in London. West never overcame his homesickness and his house became a center for younger artists visiting from America.

Ask Your
DentistBy ALFRED E. SEYLER,
D.D.S.

Q. I had a set of teeth made about 10 years ago. I was told the teeth were made of plastic and were better than porcelain ones. But now I find the back teeth are all worn down and I can't really chew my food anymore. Also my right jaw cracks and even hurts when I chew. What can I do? Mrs. H.D.

A. I doubt if you can do anything to help yourself. But I think a dentist can help you with your problem. Most likely he will make you a new set of dentures.

No doubt the plastic teeth used in your dentures have worn a lot in the past years. At that time, the plastic teeth we sometimes used were not as "tough" as the plastic teeth we use today, although they still wear down more than porcelain teeth.

I conclude from your letter that you haven't been to a dentist for about ten years. Perhaps you felt that your visits to the dentist would no longer be necessary — but that is most certainly not true.

Dentures exert pressure on the jaw bones (or ridges) when you use them, causing some changes in their shape. This in turn makes a difference in the relationship of the upper and lower teeth of the dentures. The tissue which covers the ridges may become inflamed and sore, causing you pain when you try to chew food, especially foods which require pressure to grind them up, such as meats and leafy vegetables such as we use to make a tasty salad.

If the changes in the bones of the jaw become great, you will probably develop pain in the joint of your jaws — where the lower jaw fits into the socket of your upper jaw. (You can feel the joint if you press on your face just in front of your ear and open and close your jaws). Problems in that joint are called TMJ (temporomandibular joint) problems, and can be very painful.

Q. My dentist and his hygienist have recommended that I use a water jet device to clean between my teeth and around the bridge I have. Are they really efficient? G.S.

A. Well supervised investigations about the water jet devices show that they are quite a help in removing debris from between teeth and around bridges.

They are especially helpful for people who have periodontal pockets around teeth, as in pyorrhea of the advanced stages.

Studies show that pulsating water devices are better than just a stream of water and particularly if the pressure is maintained at the medium to high range. However, if a patient has severe gum trouble, a medium or high pressure may further irritate the gums, so be careful!

Don't neglect to also use dental floss in a proper way, if you wish to help to keep your teeth really clean.

Q. I have had three electric tooth brushes in the past year. All of them broke down within a short time, but my druggist tells me there's nothing anyone can or will do about it. Doesn't the American Dental Association have some seal of approval, like Good Housekeeping magazine? J.L.

A. The council on Dental Materials and Devices of the American Dental Association has a program for receiving complaints about dental devices or materials. I understand they receive such complaints if you address them at 211 E. Chicago Ave., Chicago, Ill. 60611.

I suggest you present specific information about any defect or malfunction, identification of the item, its manufacturer and date purchased, along with any severe incidents or reactions.

Being Born In U.S. Has Its Advantages

By STEVEN M. EAMES
Associated Press Writer
LAREDO, Tex. (AP) — Big-bellied and trembling Mexican women grasp at the chipped metal bars of an old hospital bed in midwife Flora G. Calderon's clinic.

Aided by the midwife's stubby fingers and slow, sure movements, they give birth to United States citizens.

Family, neighbors and an occasional expectant father gather in the adjoining room at a leather-trimmed wood bar to wait and perhaps sip a beer.

Senora Calderon's midwife hospital is at the corner of Hidalgo and St. Cleotide, two narrow avenues intersecting west of downtown Laredo.

A few blocks to the south of the adobe-caked clinic flows the Rio Grande, border between Mexico and Texas. Babies born of Mexican parents on United States soil have dual citizenship until they are adults.

Such babies erase some of the barriers which their parents would otherwise face in immigrating to the United States.

During a tour of her high-ceilinged combination home and clinic, Mrs. Calderon said she has delivered thousands of babies in her 20 years as a midwife.

She moved deliberately because of her more than 65 years. She spoke in Spanish, which her son interpreted before adding his own recollections and interpretations of his mother's work.

Mrs. Calderon is probably Laredo's best established midwife, although there are two others registered here. One is listed in the yellow pages of the telephone directory.

The Calderon business is not listed in the yellow pages. She distributes call calendars emblazoned with a child on scales and passes out ball point pens similarly decorated.

She said that Mexican women pay her $150 fee and stay at her clinic for many reasons. When asked if most clients' main reason was to give birth to United States citizens, Mrs. Calderon said: "I don't ask how you pass or how you go. It is my business to deliver the babies."

U.S. Immigration and Naturalization Service (INS) regional director Joe Staley said border officers would not stop pregnant Mexican women from crossing unless it appeared they would become a drain on welfare rolls or charity hospitals.

"Pregnancy is not grounds for exclusion," he said.

Staley, a broad-shouldered ex-border patrolman who said he acted as a midwife several times while in the field, said the midwives are "very good ... though not as good as a doctor."

Mrs. Calderon's clinic furnishings are a paradox, a blend of modern and old. Her delivery room is a converted kitchen, which she proudly noted has hot and cold running water.

The delivery table is the battered hospital bed covered with a sheet of red vinyl. Another piece of delivery equipment is fashioned from plywood, crudely sawed.

Yet the cabinets in the well-lit room contain gleaming hypodermic needles, medicines and pills prescribed by local doctors for Mrs. Calderon's discretion during deliveries.

In the kitchen is a large side-by-side refrigerator-freezer and a long-used natural gas stove. In the office, births are recorded using a modern, expensive electric typewriter perched on an old gouged and scraped wood desk.

Mrs. Calderon's $150 fee includes pre-delivery checkups. Local hospitals may charge from $800 to $1,200 to deliver child.

FLORA CALDERON

EDITOR'S NOTE

Pregnant Mexican women cross the Rio Grande by the hundreds each year to give birth in the United States. In most cases, their rewards are adequate care, lower cost and children who can claim United States citizenship. An Associated Press newsman visited one of the border midwife clinics on the Texas side.

'Cautious' Reaume Wins Medalist Honors In Amateur

CHARLEVOIX, Mich. (AP) — Jeff Reaume played a little cautiously Wednesday. Now it's time to take chances, because if you don't gamble you don't win in match play, he says.

He admitted playing things safe Wednesday, but his 74 was still good enough to make the former Eastern Michigan University player the medalist in the 64th Michigan Amateur Golf Championship.

Stroke play has ended, and the field of 322 was reduced to 64 for today's opening two rounds of match competition.

"In match play you can gamble more because if you do something wrong you only lose one hole. You don't have to worry about your strokes," said the 24-year-old Reaume.

However, the Ypsilanti resident admits a preference for medal play, while one of the tourney's biggest challengers — five-time champion Glenn Johnson of Grosse Ile — thrives on match play.

The 53-year-old insurance salesman won 23 straight matches before losing a semifinal in 1957. In 27 years he has qualified 24 times and won 64 of 83 matches.

Reaume's qualifying total of 141 included a four-under-par 67 Tuesday at Harbor Point Golf Club at Harbor Springs some 20 miles north of Charlevoix. His 74 came at Belvedere Golf Club in Charlevoix, a par 72 layout which has hosted the event for 25 years, including the last 13.

All the remaining play will be at Belvedere.

The cutoff qualifying score was 151, with 13 players involved in a one-hole playoff to eliminate one player. That was Jack VanEss of Grand Rapids, who shot a double bogey seven on the first extra hole.

Johnson, winner in 1954, 1955, 1956, 1958, and 1961, fired a fine

68 Wednesday at Belvedere to go with his Harbor Point 74. The 142 total was one stroke behind Reaume and one ahead of Mary Benly of Dearborn and Roy Schultheiss of Port Huron.

Former runnersup Mark Henriksen of Grand Blanc and Keith Mohan of Flint shot 144 and 145 respectively. Mohan lost in the finals last year to Rod Sumpter, who has since turned pro.

Reaume says in match play, "You try to block the other player out of your mind." That player today was Tom Mase of East Lansing, who had a 149 qualifying total. Johnson's first round rival was Robert Hamilton of Milford, also a 149 scorer.

Another former champion, three-time winner Bud Stevens of Livonia, was at 151 and qualified to face John French (138) of Lathrup Village. French shot an 80 in the first round but came back with a 68 in the second.

The only other former winner,

Doug Hankey of St. Johns, failed to qualify at 165.

Detroit Red Wing hockey player Nick Libett was among those who failed to qualify. Also in the category was Fred Stabley Jr., a sportswriter for the Lansing State Journal, who was both competing in and covering the event.

Max Adant of Fraser, who was in a car accident enroute to Charlevoix and has a battered face to prove it, was among the low scorers at 145. The driver of the car, Greg Palmer of Mount Clemens, withdrew with a broken toe.

Two southwestern Michigan golfers survived the cut, with Steve Wells of Dowagiac shooting an excellent 72-74-146 while Dave St. Aubin of Paw Paw created a 73-76-149.

Wells was matched against John Havins of Troy in the first round of match play today while St. Aubin squared off against Dan Pohl of Mt. Pleasant.

Reds Keep Winning 'Double Or Nothing' Expos' Explosion Dooms Cubs

From ASSOCIATED PRESS

It's double or nothing when the Cincinnati Reds play the Atlanta Braves these days. The Reds reel off double plays and the Braves get nothing.

After turning four double plays in blanking the Braves 30 Tuesday night, the Reds pulled off five more Wednesday night in a 2-0 triumph. Coupled with the Houston Astros' 5-4 victory over Los Angeles, the victory boosted the Reds' lead over the Dodgers in the National League's West Division to four games.

Tom Carroll, who pitched eight innings of three-hit ball, issued a leadoff walk in the ninth and Will McEneaney took over following a 43-minute rain delay. Ralph Garr bounced into a forceout and Marty Perez rapped into a game-ending double play.

The Reds scored against Carl Morton on sacrifice flies by Joe Morgan in the sixth inning and Dave Concepcion in the ninth.

In the NL East, the Philadelphia Phillies chopped Pittsburgh's lead to one game by defeating the Pirates 7-6 in 13 innings and sweeping the four-game series.

Elsewhere, the New York Mets nipped the St. Louis Cardinals 2-1, the Montreal Expos exploded for 10 runs in the seventh inning and whipped the Chicago Cubs 12-6 and the San Diego Padres downed the San Francisco Giants 6-2.

Roger Metzger singled and Cesar Cedeno tripled off Don Sutton in the seventh inning to break a 4-4 tie. Cedeno homered in the first inning and the Astros added two more in the second on Bob Watson's double, Enos Cabell's triple and a grounder.

The Dodgers tied the score in the third on Jim Wynn's three-run homer and both teams scored in the sixth before Houston got the winner in the seventh.

Mike Schmidt drew a bases-loaded walk from Dave Giusti with one out in the 13th to force in the winning run. The Pirates had a 6-0 lead after 2½ innings.

Jay Johnstone opened the 13th with a double and Greg Luzinski, whose two-run homer tied the score in the seventh, was intentionally walked. Dick Allen, who tripled two runs across in the fifth, sacrificed and Giusti walked John Oates intentionally to lead the bases, but then walked Schmidt on a 3-2 pitch.

Tom Seaver and Rick Baldwin combined on a four-hitter and Rusty Staub slammed a two-run triple in the seventh. It was the sixth consecutive triumph for Seaver, 11-4, who had allowed only one run in his last 38 innings until St. Louis scored in the ninth.

Pepe Mangual belted a three-run homer to cap a 10-run Montreal outburst in the seventh inning.

Jose Morales contributed a two-run triple and Mike Jorgensen had a two-run single in the inning, the biggest ever for the Expos. Mangual's homer, his seventh of the season, was his second hit of the inning. He also had an infield single in the frame and Cub shortstop Don Kessinger made two throwing errors.

Chicago scored in the first on a triple by Kessinger and a sacrifice fly, and added three more in the sixth on singles by Jose Cardenal and Bill Madlock, two walks, a fielder's choice and a throwing error.

Chicago picked up two runs in the eighth on RBI-singles by Manny Trillo and Steve Swisher.

Tim Lincecum's run-scoring single in the third and Mangual's RBI-double in the fifth accounted for the first two Montreal runs.

Rich Folkers stopped San Francisco on eight hits and ex-Giant Willie McCovey contributed a pair of run-scoring singles.

Dempsey-Miske Movies Sought

Somewhere in this area there may be motion picture films of the 1920 world championship heavyweight fight between Jack Dempsey and Billy Miske that was held in Benton Harbor.

That's the hope of a New York businessman who has promised Miske's daughter he will renew his efforts to obtain films of the fight.

Jimmy Jacobs, president of The Big Fights, Inc., owns the largest collection of fight films in existence, but, could not satisfy Barbara Miske's recent request for films of her father in action.

However, Jacobs — a former national handball champion — recalled that during his visit to Benton Harbor for the 1964 national four-wall championships he had read accounts of the Dempsey-Miske fight in this newspaper's files that had mentioned that the audience was sprinkled with fans filming home movies.

He received no response from advertisements he ran at that time seeking films, but said Miske's daughter had persuaded him to try again.

Jacobs stressed that he is not seeking permanent possession of any such films, but would pay for the right to make prints of them and would guarantee that they would be returned unharmed.

Anyone knowing of films of the Dempsey-Miske fight is asked to contact Jacobs at 9 East 40th Street, New York, N.Y., 10016.

Plangger's Explodes In Double Victories

Plangger's long-dormant bats finally came to life Wednesday night.

Plangger's, led by veteran Vic Gillette, exploded for 20 runs and 24 hits in dumping Elkhart GM 11-4 and 9-0 in a Michiana league twin bill at Plangger's field.

Gillette batted in seven runs for the night with a two-run homer in the first game and a three-run home run and two-run double in the nightcap. Ron Mandarino and Dan Fester both ended with four singles in the doubleheader.

Plangger's, which got four homers for the night, collected 14 hits in the opener and scored four times in both the fourth and fifth frames. Rick Plangger, Nick Shushman, Fester and

Rick Plangger allowed only two hits in taking the win. He fanned 11 and walked four.

Plangger's swatted 10 hits in the nightcap to support the three-hit, 12-strikeout hurling of George Luther.

Plangger's bombed five runs in the third with Gillette cracking his three-run homer and nick Shushman adding a two-run job. Fred Chabot delivered a solo homer in the fourth. Fester, Mandarino and Gillette all had two hits in the nightcap.

Plangger's is now 5-4 in league play. Plangger's will host Grand Rapids Steelcase tonight in a nonleague twin bill starting at 7:30.

TV Hassle Dooms Track Meet

NEW YORK (AP) — The 17th annual U.S.-Russia Track Meet, plagued by a series of ill-defined and often mysterious disagreements over television contract rights, now appears to have lost all possible chance of being held.

The American Broadcasting Company and the State Committee for Television and Radio for the USSR announced Wednesday they had cancelled a $50,000 contract to televise the meet. It was that contract which had prompted the AAU last week to call off the meet.

AAU Executive Director Ollan Cassell said the contract was improper because the AAU held all U.S. television rights to the meet. He charged the Soviets had violated the terms of their contract with the AAU by signing with ABC. The AAU has an agreement with CBS-TV.

Cassell said that "without the revenue that would accrue to us from television, we are unable to finance the trip."

However, Boone Arledge, president of ABC sports, said the Russians had approached the network after they were unable to get an answer on U.S. television rights from the AAU. ABC subsequently agreed to pay the Russians $50,000 for the rights.

The decision to void the contract was announced jointly by Arledge and Eugene Ok-skeevich, deputy director for foreign relations of the State Committee.

"We have tried every possible method to insure that a meet would be held," Arledge said in a statement. He said ABC had offered to pay transportation to Kiev for 60 athletes and 20 AAG officials to help defray costs, "but we still have received neither acceptance nor rejection."

"John Martin of ABC has been advised that we wouldn't accept their offer," Cassell res-pounded from his office in Indianapolis. "If we took it, it would violate our present contract, and he's only offering half enough to get our team there. He's only offering transportation from New York to Kiev. But we have to bring all our athletes to New York from all over the United States."

"I don't see how we could make arrangements this quickly and get this thing back on the track," Cassell said.

Lakeshore Nips SH In Pitching Battle

BY PAUL MORGAN
Staff Sports Writer

It was one of those games most people expect to see when two undefeated teams clash: good pitching, good defense and a close score.

South Haven and Lakeshore Legion lived up to the billing when Lakeshore scored a run in the bottom of the first and made it hold for a 1-0 American Legion victory at Lakeshore's field. In the only other game played, St. Joseph Mack notched its fourth victory in a row by beating Lakeshore Mack 3-1.

Dave Gumpert for South Haven and Lakeshore's Steve Hennback did outstanding jobs in the pitching department for their respective clubs.

Gumpert faced just 25 batters and gave up four hits with three of them coming in the first inning. Hennback scattered seven hits and didn't walk a man as he kept his pitches low and forced South Haven to hit ground balls to his infielders.

Hennback got the only run he needed in the first when Barry Rennhack got the only run he needed in the first when Barry Adams singled with two outs and went to second on a passed ball. Jim Welch drove him in with a single.

The only other threat Lakeshore had in the contest was in the sixth inning but a ground out with the bases loaded ended the inning. Lakeshore effectively put down rallies by South Haven with some excellent work in the infield. Just as it looked like South Haven might break through, Lakeshore turned over double plays in the second and sixth innings to thwart them.

Jim McCloughan's crew had their biggest threat going in the top of the seventh when Al Watson and Dan Sherman opened the inning with singles and moved up on Ken Cullum's ground out. Mike Verdunk pinch-hit and bounced to shortstop Dave Burwell who gunned down Watson at the plate. Gumpert then bounced out to the pitcher to end the game.

Adams had the hot bat for Lakeshore, going two-for-two.

Sherman went three-for-three for South Haven.

Lakeshore stands atop the Blue-Gray Division with a 4-0 mark while South Haven drops to 5-1.

Eddie Owsianka pitched near perfect baseball through four innings for St. Joseph Mack. His arm tightened up in the fifth, though and Ron Hollis finished up the game.

St. Joe scored all three runs in the second inning when Mike Kline got on base on an error, Hollis walked and both were driven in on Joe Dicanick's double. Dicanick then came home on Pat Weber's single.

Three singles in a row got Lakeshore its only run in the seventh with John Underwood getting the RBI. Jim Porter went all the way and absorbed the loss.

Jeff Butler notched two of St. Joseph's hits, getting a double and a single. Lakeshore had six hits with Mike Moschioni and Underwood collecting two each.

St. Joseph is now 4-3 while Lakeshore has yet to taste victory in four outings.

Undefeated Heights Edges Fairplain

Fairplain fell from the ranks of the unbeaten last night in Connie Mack League action, but didn't go down without a fight.

Benton Heights pushed across a run in the bottom of the seventh to down Fairplain 1-0. In other action, Coloma upped its record to 3-0 with a 3-2 win over North Lincoln and Bangor wholluped Hagar 10-1.

Fairplain had its chances, getting eight hits and putting men on in every inning except one. But Rick Haney and a solid defense kept Fairplain from scoring.

Phil Arivett singled in the seventh and John Hamilton and Joe Pelkey sacrificed him to third. Sandy Spears then drove Arivett in with a single.

Losing pitcher Bob Mattner helped his own cause with a double and a single while teammate Gary Bartalone had two singles. Arivett had two singles for Benton Benton Heights, now 4-0.

Coloma scored its three runs in the first part of the game and had to hold off North Lincoln in the first inning to preserve the victory.

Dewey Wheeler singled in Wally Kroschell in the first inning with Coloma's first run. In the third, Coloma loaded the bases and scored on a wild pitch and a pick-off play at second that went awry.

In the seventh, North Lincoln loaded the bases and Bill Strine drove in both runs with a double.

Coloma, now 3-0, had three singles from Wally Kroschell. Strine had a double and a single for North Lincoln, now 1-4.

Winning pitcher Carl Johnson led the Bangor hit parade against Hagar with two home runs and single that drove in four runs. He also pitched a one-hitter and struck out 12 to boot.

Both teams scored in the third inning with Keith Wiles driving in Bangor's run with a sacrifice and Johnson threw a pick-off attempt past his third baseman allowing Rick Turner to score Hagar's run.

Johnson put Bangor ahead to stay in the fourth as he led off with a solo shot and later in the inning, Jeff Shine singled in another. Bangor scored five runs in the fifth and two more in the seventh to put the game away. Johnson knocked in three runs with a homer in the fifth and Wiles had a two-run double in the seventh.

Bangor is now 4-2 while Hagar drops to 0-3.

Aggressive II Holds Sailing Lead

GROSSE POINTE, Mich. (AP) — Aggressive II won Tuesday's third race in the Two Ton WORLD Sailing Championships and edged to a quarter point lead going in to today's long-distance competition on Lake Huron.

Aggressive II, the defending champion, is owned by Frank Piku and Dave Gamble of Detroit. It had 20½ points going into today's sailing, barely ahead of a Mexican boat, Vendetta, which trailed with 20¼. Ricochet, from Detroit, was third in the series with 20 points after three days of racing.

Leading Edge, from Detroit, was fourth with 14 points, Golden Daisy of Detroit was fifth with 13, Notre Dame du Lac of Grosse Pointe, sixth with 11, Desperado of Traverse City, seventh with 6 and Agape of Sheboygan, Wis., last with 4 points.

Tuesday's 27-mile run was held partially in heavy rains and thunderstorms.

Vendetta, Ricochet and Leading Edge followed Aggressive II in the run. Fifth was Golden Daisy, with Notre Dame sixth, Desperado seventh and Agape eighth.

Big Hydroplane Field Expected In Detroit Race

DETROIT (AP) — As many as 14 hydroplanes may participate in the Gar Wood Trophy Race this Sunday, with nine boats already being counted on by race promoters.

If more than nine do qualify, it will be the largest field so far this year on the hydroplane circuit.

Miss U.S. was the only boat on the Detroit River course Tuesday as a steady afternoon rain discouraged other deliveries to the riverfront pits.

Nine boats are deemed certain entries, said race chairman Jack Love. They are defending champion Pay N' Pak, current circuit leader Weisfield's, Miss U.S., Lincoln Thrift, Atlas Van Lines, Miss Budweiser, Miss Vernors, Mr. Fabricator and Miss Madison.

Remaining as possible entries are Justa-Pest, Probe, Miss Valvoline, Owensboro's Own and the U-5.

Tom D'Eath piloted Miss U.S. over four laps before Tuesday's rains came, hitting a top time of 117 miles per hour. Official time trials are to open today and conclude Friday.

Cubs' Bus Trip Tickets On Sale

Registrations are now being taken by the Benton Harbor Area Recreation Department for a trip to Chicago on July 7 to watch the Chicago Cubs play the Pittsburgh Pirates.

The trip is open to youth and adults in Berrien county. Cost of the trip is $5 which includes transportation and ticket. Buses will leave the Recreation office at 808 Territorial Rd. at 10:30 a.m. and return at 7 p.m.

Duffers Paying To Get On Television

MANHASSET, N.Y. (AP) — Two golfing women have parlayed their hobby into a booming business based on the belief that even a duffer likes to see himself on television — and doesn't mind paying the bill.

They're Kay Delaney and Sue Shea of Scarsdale, N.Y., who started putting other players on video tape between their own rounds at the Scarsdale Golf Club last summer. For $300 or $400, they now show instant replays of the instant stars at clubs or private parties.

"The worse they played, the better they loved the film," said Kay. "And the biggest hit was hearing those wild remarks recorded as they missed strokes. The worse the language the better the show."

The two women started out when their husbands gave them TV equipment for Christmas. The golf shots started as a gag, but spurted into big business.

"We're not in the 500 biggest businesses yet," the two said almost simultaneously of their six-figure turnover. "But we're getting there."

At the beginning, they used the Shea kitchen as an office and kept their equipment in the garage. Their "studio" consisted of two canvas bags used to haul a camera and tape recorder.

Now they have an office in this Long Island golfing town, 15 female employees and new equipment costing $4,000. They call themselves Videoway Inc.

"We're golf videos, not widows," they both are fond of saying.

The two still work together, Sue operating the camera and Kay doing interviews.

"Everybody feels like Arnold Palmer," Kay said of the golfers who pay to play in their own TV sports classics.

The video tape is shown through a TV set to which an instant playback gadget is attached. Most showings are at club parties or at homes.

Although they now fly around the country — from Phoenix to Southampton — the business still has its homelike touch: They carry their equipment in a grocery cart.

Unknown Stewart Wimbledon Star American Upsets Nastase

WIMBLEDON, England (AP) — Sherwood Stewart is a former computer salesman who quit the business scene for the "bust and hump" world of professional tennis.

But he made the 1975 Wimbledon championships come to life Wednesday before a record crowd when he mastered fifth-seeded Romanian Ilie Nastase in an electrifying five-set contest.

Helped to victory by an out-of-form Nastase, the tall, bearded American ignored the Romanian's extrovert antics and his tantrums over a disputed final set line call and sent Nastase spinning out of the men's singles 8-6, 6-8, 6-2, 1-6, 6-3.

"I planned to play to Nastase's backhand all the time, because he's just not hitting his backhands any good any more, and it worked," said Stewart, 29, ranked No. 15 in the United States.

"It was a big win," he added,

"because of where you're playing and who you're playing if you beat one of the seeds."

The native of Goose Creek, Tex., now called Baytown, ran into trouble in the fourth set when he suffered cramps in both legs. "But I took some salt tablets and glucose and recovered."

Stewart also underwent a cartilage operation on his right knee in March.

A junior tennis player, Stewart worked for IBM for two years after graduating from college in 1969. But in 1971 he decided to play full-time, working up the hard way by qualifying for all the big tournaments. "It was really the bust and hump school, as we say."

He laughed when he learned that his third-round opponent was to be boyhood friend and tennis chum, Mike Estep of Dallas, who also made it through the second round Wednesday by beating Robin Drysdale of Britain.

As the men entered the third round Thursday, only 11 of the original 16 seeds were left, with Jan Kodes of Czechoslovakia falling to Australia's Geoff Masters 2-6, 2-6, 6-4, 8-6, 6-4 and John Alexander losing to fellow-Australian Paul Kronk 1-6, 9-8, 9-8 on Wednesday. Also out are Americans Stan Smith and Vitas Gerulaitis of Howard Beach, N.Y.

Still heavily favored to retain his title is Jimmy Connors, who overcame hay fever to defeat Vijay Amritraj of India 9-8, 6-0, 8-6.

His one-time fiancée, now friend, Chris Evert, zipped into the third round by beating Elly Appel of The Netherlands 6-0, 6-1. Miss Evert is defending the women's crown.

One of the eight women's seeds, Kerry Melville-Reid of Australia, went out Wednesday, retiring when trailing Britain's Sue Barker 4-6, 0-1. Mrs. Melville-Reid said she was not feeling well.

Match Race Set July 8

Foolish Pleasure Faces Undefeated Ruffian

ORLANDO, Fla. (AP) — John L. Greer says his Foolish Pleasure can beat the filly Ruffian in their upcoming "boy-girl" match race — unless she jumps out ahead of his Kentucky Derby champion colt.

"I think we'll win it," Greer, a Tennessean who resides part-time in Miami, said Wednesday. "If I didn't, I wouldn't be in it."

"But I know you have to stay with Ruffian to beat her. You can't let her get out front and start galloping. She's got that long, loping stride."

The $350,000 match race between the two 3-year-olds over 1 1/4 miles is scheduled for July 8 at Belmont Park.

Greer said the race may be fast, but he really doesn't think time will play a factor.

"Match races are an entirely different tub of possums from regular races," Greer, 77, said. "I don't know much about them, but I don't think times are going to mean much."

Greer also said he wasn't worried about the decision by jockey Jacinto Vasquez, the regular jockey for both Foolish Pleasure and Ruffian, to opt for the Triple Crown winning filly in the upcoming race.

Greer said his new jockey, Braulio Baeza, "is as good as there is."

"He's riding in grand form at this time," Greer said. "I'm not disappointed in not having Vasquez."

Florida-bred Foolish Pleasure, who has won 11 of 14 starts, captured this year's Kentucky Derby, but finished second to Master Derby in the Preakness and second to Avatar in the Belmont Stakes, the other two races of the Triple Crown.

Ruffian, however, has won all 10 of her starts, including a sweep of this year's Triple Crown for fillies — the Acorn, Mother Goose and Coaching Club American Oaks.

Although the match race has captured the imagination of the racing world, Greer said it won't answer who will become horse of the year.

"I'm making no predictions on that yet," Greer said. "The year has a long way to go yet. I'm just hoping we make a good showing from here on out."

Attendance Boom

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — National League attendance for the week ending Sunday hit a season high of 830,428, league headquarters announced Tuesday.

The three-day weekend turnout of 484,595 also was the best this season.

Pocono Infield Is Home For Many Race Families

LONG POND, Pa. (AP) — At dusk, the hibachis glow, the hamburgers sizzle and a crowd of weary figures gets ready to bed down in the infield of the Pocono International Raceway.

Racing fans? Hardly. These are the mechanics, officials and even some of the drivers who, along with their families, retire to what is home away from home after a long day at the track.

Life on the road in big-time auto racing is far from the glamour the drivers and their crews enjoy when on the race track, hovering around their gleaming racing machines, some of which cost up to $100,000.

With a price tag like that just to compete, there is in most cases little left for the refinements of a hotel or motel, restaurant meals or evening entertainment.

As Sunday's 500-mile race for Indianapolis-type cars draws near, the motor homes and campers of the likes of Johnny Rutherford, Gordon Johncock, Pancho Carter and others are parked in the sandy infield. Some head for motels at night, others stay at the track to avoid the mountain resort prices.

Even those who shell out for the "luxury" of a motel often sleep with a crew member or a relative or two in the motor home in the parking lot. During the day, the motel room, rented for one or two days, will be the headquarters for up to a dozen people, using the showers, the swimming pool, game room or tennis courts. But many racers, especially the shoestring operators, camp out the entire 10 days they are here before this race. They sleep in the backs of trucks in sleeping bags, eat out of an ice chest or the cafeteria and wash up in the restrooms.

At Milwaukee two weeks ago where the road show went for a 150-miler, one car owner and his wife slept across the seats of their two-seated pickup truck, parked in the parking lot of a motel near the track. When race morning came, they waited until someone they knew walked out, then asked to use the lodger's room to clean up.

If the participants don't welcome paying the tab at a motel, the ones who do stay aren't always welcome either. A few inns near here where some racers stay charge a 15 per cent gratuity that is — while not uncommon — only charged by the establishments while racers are in town. Usually racers are "isolated" in one section or floor of a motel.

Asked about the gratuity, one motel employee said, "We learned last year that if we don't charge it, we'll never get it. Racers are the chintziest people we get here, they're so rowdy and they leave such a mess."

It should be emphasized that battle lines are not drawn between racers and all hotels or motels. In fact, many offer special rates.

But many racers are content to live the life of a nomad. As one driver put it, "At least this way, we beat the crowds to the track."

U.S. Regulators Keep Tight Lid On Bank Data

By LEE MITGANG
AP Business Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — Despite mounting concern over the liquidity and lending practices of the nation's banks, federal banking regulators maintain a tight lid on what information is disclosed to the public.

So immune to disclosure are some documents that even state and federal judges and other regulatory authorities usually are powerless to subpoena them.

In the case of the 4,700 nationally chartered banks whose operations are regulated chiefly by the U.S. Comptroller of the Currency, highly detailed data gathered on each bank's books and records, loan portfolios and quality of management, among other items, are rigidly protected from public scrutiny by the National Bank Act.

The information, gathered at each bank in periodic surprise examinations at least three times every two years by the government's 2,000 bank examiners, is also specifically exempt from the federal Freedom of Information Act, which permits public access to a wide range of government documents.

"If that were not the case," explains a spokesman for the comptroller, "anyone who chose to could find out who's taking out loans, for what purpose, for what collateral. It would be a gross invasion of privacy."

Other banking officials add that disclosure of this information might dangerously undermine public confidence in the banking system.

Also unavailable are so-called Past-Due Loan Reports which the comptroller began to collect bimonthly last October from nationally chartered banks, around the time when Franklin National Bank and Security National Bank of New York went insolvent and concern began to mount over the health of banks' loan portfolios.

And now that the public has grown more aware of the banking practice called redlining — when banks refuse to grant mortgages or other loans in disadvantaged communities — there is some question whether national banking authorities will voluntarily make full public disclosure on what they're finding out about this practice.

Deputy Comptroller for Banking and Economic Research David C. Motter says the comptroller's office and three other federal banking agencies have conducted a pilot study on the criteria used by banks in 18 metropolitan areas in determining who gets mortgage loans.

The final results still are being evaluated and "no decision has been reached to make such information public," says Motter, because the study was limited only to 18 communities and he says public release might appear inequitable.

"If such reporting practices on this subject were to become required nationwide, disclosure would be more likely," Motter says.

Some routine information kept by the comptroller's office is freely available to the public, but not much beyond what a bank "willing to cooperate" would give out voluntarily, Motter says.

Deal May End NH Vote Stalemate

WASHINGTON (AP) — A break in the Senate stalemate over the contested New Hampshire seat may be in sight after a signal from a key Democrat that could attract some Republican votes to limit debate.

Although Democratic absenteeism appeared to doom today's third attempt to attain the 60 votes needed to curb debate, some party strategists hoped for a breakthrough, possibly Friday.

Seeking to win Republican support to limit the 12-day debate, Asst. Democratic Leader Robert C. Byrd said Wednesday that even if the Democrats pick up the disputed seat, Republican senators won't lose any of their current spots on important committees.

He Invests 21 Years In 'Innocent' Client

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — Back in 1954, attorney Mark M. Hennelly took on a murder case. Twenty-one years later, it is one of the longest uninterrupted court battles in the history of American criminal law.

Hennelly now is 59 and no longer in criminal law, except to defend J.W. "Slick" Stidham, a life term inmate of the state penitentiary, who is nearing 50. When Hennelly accepted the case, Stidham was a 28-year-old convict serving 25 years for armed robbery.

Then, in September 1954, there was a riot at the prison. During the confusion, inmate Walter Lee Donnell, who had testified against a St. Louis armed robbery gang, was slain.

After the riot, confessions were obtained from Stidham and six other inmates in the Donnell murder. In court, the men said they were tortured in to confessing. Their requests for polygraph (lie detector) tests were denied.

Hennelly was asked to take the case by the Rev. Charles Dismas Clark, the so-called "hoodlum priest" of St. Louis. Father Clark died in 1963.

"It was never any secret that I tried all of Father Clark's cases for him," Hennelly recalled in a recent interview.

When Hennelly argued Stidham's case before the U.S. Supreme Court in October 1972, he was executive vice president of the $1.5 billion Mississippi River Corp. The justices were curious why he continued to argue the case for a penniless convict.

Hennelly replied: "This case is like a fingernail on a blackboard with me — as it should be with any lawyer. As long as I believe that a man's in prison for something he didn't do, I can't rest."

WINS IRISH SWEEPSTAKES: Ed D. Harrell, welder repairman at the Detroit Cadillac Fleetwood plant, holds telegram in Detroit Wednesday confirming that he was winner of the Irish Sweepstakes top prize of $460,000. (AP Wirephoto)

Detroit Car Welder Wins Irish Sweepstakes Prize

DETROIT (AP) — Ed D. Harrell plans to move his family from Cleveland to a new home in Detroit thanks to the Irish Sweepstakes.

Harrell won the Dublin drawing's top prize of $460,000 Wednesday when his ticket was picked from a drum containing three million tickets from around the world.

The welder repairman in the Detroit Cadillac Fleetwood plant said he does not plan any major change in his life style. But he said he plans to move his wife and children to Detroit. For the past four years Harrell has worked in Detroit during the week, driving back to Cleveland on weekends.

"I thought everybody was just kidding," Harrell said, telling how a neighbor woke him up Wednesday morning to tell him she had heard a radio broadcast that he had won the prize.

He said he stopped thinking "it was a gag" when a television news crew pulled up to his door to wish him off for an interview.

When he telephoned his wife, Tince, with the news, she thought he was joking, then, when the impact sunk in, "almost fainted."

Harrell said he plans to show up for work Friday — "it's payday" — and keep working at the auto plant until he retires in eight years. He worked in Cleveland-area General Motors plants for 18 years before being transferred to Detroit.

As a welder repairman, Harrell said, he makes up to $22,000 a year.

He said he will use some of the lottery loot to pay for college for his children.

"I got two in already and I go two in high school, so I'll need the money," he said. Two other children are married, he said.

"Besides sending my four kids to college, I'll keep it for retirement," he said.

Harrell said he may invest his new money in General Motors stock and some real estate, including a new house in Detroit. He has been living with his sister's family in the Motor City.

Harrell has no plans for flaunting his wealth.

"I just live like the working man I am," he said, "I don't need all that flashy stuff."

On tap, though, is a vacation to visit his mother in Alabama. Then it is back to Detroit, his job in the auto plant and tending his backyard garden with its turnips, squash, corn, tomatoes, lettuce radishes, string beans and cucumbers, he said.

Berrien Prosecutors Generally Nail 'Em

By SCOTT WILLIAMSON
Staff Writer

Berrien county last year had the lowest percentage of dismissals or acquittals in criminal cases among Michigan's 10 largest counties, and ranked second in the percentage of persons who were convicted of the original charge.

The statistics were part of the 1974 Michigan Uniform Crime report released by the state police, and reflect favorably on the Berrien prosecutor's office.

"The statistics are pleasing, but we hope to do better next year," commented Prosecutor John A. Smietanka.

The report showed only nine per cent of the criminal cases in Berrien county ended in dismissal or acquittal, compared with Saginaw county, which had the highest rate of dismissals or acquittals at 21 per cent.

The report also ranked Berrien second among the state's biggest counties for convictions on the original charge with 48 per cent. The highest percentage was in Ingham county where 58 per cent were convicted on the original charge. Saginaw county was at the bottom, with only 19 per cent.

The report is based on all offenses other than traffic offenses, although driving under the influence of intoxicants was also included in the study.

Smietanka attributed the lowest number of dismissals or acquittals to "better evidence available when a case comes in" and good police work.

"We can't prosecute without evidence, and the low statistic means the police in Berrien county are doing their job very well," the prosecutor noted.

He cited a larger staff and "a dislike for plea-bargaining" as the reasons for the high percentage of people who are convicted of the original charge. He said his office can now go after more convictions because of a larger prosecutorial staff.

"I appreciate the cooperation of area police agencies in investigations, the expeditious handling of cases by Berrien's courts, and the diligence and aggressiveness of my staff," Smietanka added while reflecting on the report.

Other portions of the report show 8,420 adults were charged with various offenses last year in Berrien county. Eleven per cent of those were convicted of a lesser charge than the original (for a fourth ranking among the 10 largest counties), and 32 per cent of the cases were pending or disposed of by other methods.

Smietanka said much of the last statistic is comprised of cases which have been put on the prosecutor's deferred prosecution program, a type of probationary program where first-time offenders for non-assaultive crimes are given a chance to clean their record without prosecution.

Sewer Project Agency Named

By DENNIS COGSWELL
Paw Paw Bureau

LAWRENCE — Van Buren county road commission was tentatively designated yesterday as the agency to apply for a federal grant to study wastewater treatment needs in a five municipality area in the county.

The action came during a meeting here involving representatives of Hartford city and township, Lawrence village and township, Bangor township, and the Department of Natural Resources.

Both Hartford city and Lawrence village have filed interim applications for federal study grants, and the DNR has suggested that they join the three townships in combining the studies under one grant.

Paul Kaiser, Van Buren highway engineer-manager, said the road commission has previously been designated by the county as the agency to deal with matters involving public utilities, and suggested that it would provide one central reporting spot for the wastewater study. He asked that the representatives present receive approval from each of their respective boards and councils by July 10 to proceed with the application.

According to Richard Emerson, a DNR planner, the study would determine what sewer and wastewater facilities are needed in the area, and the feasibility and costs of doing any work. The next two steps would be the preparation of plans and specifications, and then the actual construction.

The cost of the study, as yet undetermined, would be 75 per cent federally funded, with five per cent coming from the state, and 20 per cent from the local governments. The local share would be apportioned on the basis of how much it costs to study each local unit's needs.

Under yesterday's proposal, the road commission would make the actual application and handle the administrative work, although all five local governments would be involved.

Jack Welc, another DNR representative at the meeting, urged quick action, noting that there is a substantial amount of money available from the government for planning.

COUNCILWOMAN: Lois Budreau, 44, was appointed Hartford's first woman city council member yesterday by council in special session. She replaces David Sinclair, who resigned May 27. Mrs. Budreau and her husband, William, reside at 114 Shepard, Hartford, and have eight children, five of whom live at home.

FLUE MINERS KILLED JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (AP) — Five miners were killed, 11 injured and 12 were missing after a rockfall early today in the East Driefontein gold mine, about 30 miles from Johannesburg.

$600,000 Addition Planned

LAWTON — Kenneth Tozer, owner and administrator of the Hope Nursing home here, has announced plans for a $600,000 addition to the home.

Tozer said he is hopeful that ground breaking for the new, 16,000-square-foot addition will be held within the next two to three weeks.

Tozer said he is awaiting "working blue prints" from the architect before seeking construction bids. Target date for opening the wing is January, 1976, he said.

The new addition would add 57 beds to the present 63-bed facility, Tozer said. Plans call for the addition of 30 skilled care beds and 27 ambulatory beds, he said.

Tozer said the new addition will be built onto the service wing of the one-story building. The new wing, which will also be one story, will be built on the five-acre site of the home which opened in February, 1974 and the purchase of additional land will not be necessary, he added.

Hagar Township Girl Hit By Car

A 5-year-old Hagar township girl was seriously injured Wednesday night when she ran into the path of an auto near her home, according to Berrien sheriff's deputies.

Listed in "serious" condition this morning in the intensive care unit at Memorial hospital was Christine Scharf, 5, of 1549 Maple lane, Hagar township. According to hospital officials, she sustained a fractured leg, rib and internal injuries.

Deputy James Bale reported the accident occurred shortly before 10 p.m. when Christine was struck by a car driven by Dennis Hettlinger, 27, of 2467 Arrow lane, Stevensville. Bale reported Hettlinger said he was near the intersection of Maple lane and Eaman road when he slowed down because of a car stopped along the road.

Bale reported Hettlinger said Christine ran into the path of his car on Maple lane. No ticket was issued.

Christine is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Horst Scharf.

Pellet Gun Accident Injures Boy

A Bridgman boy was injured when a pellet from an air rifle he was pumping up hit him in the leg, Berrien sheriff's deputies said.

Billy Howard, 14, of 4367 Oak, was treated at Memorial hospital, St. Joseph, and released following the incident yesterday in Bridgman.

SOUTH HAVEN TOWNSHIP

Approval Given New Budget

By TOM RENNER
South Haven Correspondent

SOUTH HAVEN — A $240,085 budget for fiscal 1975-76 was approved by the South Haven township board during a special meeting last night.

The budget is retroactive to March 26 when the current fiscal year began. The board had previously postponed approval of the budget pending determination of its allocation from Van Buren county.

The new budget is up $8,137 from the previous year. The township started the fiscal year with a general fund surplus and $29,000 in a revolving improvement fund. This compared to $13,465 and $27,000 respectively for the previous year.

Anticipated income includes $57,727 in local taxes; $73,800, state taxes; $1,420, licenses and permits; $1,000, rents and royalties; $29,000, revolving improvement fund; $41,798, ambulance fund; $21,000, federal revenue sharing; $500, interest on investments.

Major expenditures include $35,413 for road improvements, $14,500 for the landfill, $5,000 for township hall capital outlay; $10,000 local public improvements; $10,000 toward operation of the ambulance service; $23,500 for fire protection contract with city of South Haven.

Salaries for officials would remain the same as follows: Supervisor Clifford Klapp, $4,000; Clerk Franklin Torp, $3,500; Treasurer Mrs. Ruth (Jens) Torp, $3,500; trustees Donald Getman and Edward Post, $25 each per meeting; and assessor (appointed position), $2,500.

The board noted that ambulance service faces a substantial deficit if the federal government does not continue funding of the Comprehensive Employment Training Act (CETA) under which the township has three of its five employees. Without the federal funding the service is expected to have $41,798 income as opposed to $68,500 expenses.

Klapp reported he has received "reasonable assurances" the federal funding will continue through June, 1976, and that official announcement is expected to be made by state officials later this week.

Among other matters, the board approved two major road construction projects costing $48,353. The board plans to resurface Baseline road between 70th and 71½ streets and 72nd street between 24th avenue and CR-380. Work would be financed with $12,280 from the county road commission and the balance from the township treasury.

Motion to undertake the projects passed 4-1 with Getman casting the dissenting vote. He favored resurfacing 14th avenue between M-140 and Blue Star highway, saying the road is on brink of suffering major damage and should be repaired soon. In favor of the projects were Klapp, Torp, Mrs. Torp and Post.

Klapp reported that repairs of drains at 73rd street and 16th avenue and 77th street that were damaged by an April storm have qualified for federal disaster funding.

Voters will be asked to approve creation of a fire protection district prior to Sept. 12 so that the property tax financing rate for the service can be spread on winter tax bills.

The concept of the fire protection district is new for South Haven township. Previously, voters were asked to approve a property tax millage rate specified for fire protection services for a period of five years. A three-mill levy expired this year.

Adoption of the fire protection district would give the township perpetual authority to pay for the service without a vote of electorate. The only requirement would be an annual hearing to set the millage rate. The district would encompass the entire township.

The idea of a fire protection district was endorsed by residents attending the annual meeting in April. Torp reported that two public hearings would be held prior to the election to explain the concept to voters. Board accepted the resignation of James De Groff as an ambulance service employee, effective June 29.

Klapp said he would investigate reports that General Telephone company is burying cables along township roadways without approval of the township board.

Basketball Coach Hired By Lawrence

LAWRENCE — Lawrence school board in special session last night hired a Pewamo, Mich., teacher as Lawrence junior high math teacher and the high school varsity basketball coach.

Hired was Art Baker, 24, a graduate of Illinois Benedictine college in Lisle, Ill. Baker previously taught at Westphalia before moving to Pewamo.

He replaces David Baker (no relation) who resigned as a teacher and coach to enter into private business, a school spokesman said. In other areas last night, the board accepted the $4,985 low bid of the Steink-Penton Sheet Metal company of Jackson for dust exhaust and floor sweep machines for the school's wood working shop, and voted to purchase five new sewing machines from the Singer company at a cost of $824.

The board also gave the Brush Creek Neighbors, an adult group in Lawrence, permission to use school grounds for a July 4 picnic, according to a school spokesman.

opening his own business. He said new company has been named distributor of Burdax, Inc., industrial gases and welding supplies. (Staff photo)

New Gain

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market headed higher again today, responding to the news of another rise in a key government measure of the economy.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials was up about a point shortly after the opening, and gainers outnumbered losers by a 3-2 margin on the New York Stock Exchange.

As trading began, the Commerce Department reported that its index of leading economic indicators rose 2.1 per cent in May for its third straight monthly gain.

The index is designed to detect developing economic trends.

Texasco was down 5/8 at 26 1/2 in a huge 60,000-share block trade just after the opening.

Other early prices included Panida, up 1/8 at 8; Occidental Petroleum, up 1/4 at 18 1/2; General Electric, ahead 1/8 at 51, and Unisys, unchanged at 8 1/4.

On Wednesday the Dow Jones industrial average rose 3.67 to 872.73, its highest close in 15 months.

Advances outnumbered declines by about a 5-3 margin on the NYSE in turnover of 21.61 million shares.

The Big Board's composite index was up .23 at 50.51.

The American Stock Exchange market value index climbed .80 to 92.28.

Bank Buys
Cass Bonds

CASSOPOLIS — Afor $2,375,000 bond issue Cass county's new medical care facility was sold to National Bank of Detroit by the Cass county board of commissioners last night.

Meeting in a session that was recessed from its June 10 meeting, the board of commissioners awarded the contract to the Detroit bank, the second lowest of 10 bids submitted for the issue.

Cost of interest of the bonds was set at $33,868, by the bank. Average interest rate will be 5.31 per cent with the rate to start at 6.0 per cent when the bonds are issued this year and to drop to 5.30 per cent when the bonds are retired in 1982, the bank said.

The low bid of Continental Bank of Illinois, Chicago, at 5.29 per cent, or interest cost of $521,505 was not recommended by bonding attorney Patrick Berardo of Lansing because of varying interest rates and bid rejected by the interest rates and bid inaccuracies, and was rejected by the board.

In other areas, the board announced that the scheduled moving of county offices into the new courthouse wing this week has been delayed. No new moving date has been set.

VEHICLE REPOSSESSED Ambulance Firm To Continue Services

Stevan L. Reed, general manager of Rampart Emergency Ambulance service, said this morning that one of the company's ambulances was repossessed by a bank.

Reed added that Rampart remains open 24 hours a day with two emergency vehicles in operation. He also announced that he has replaced former Rampart General Manager Rudy Piller, who is no longer employed by the company, but remains as a stockholder.

"We owed a total of $460, and were two payments behind on the van," Reed said. The vehicle was repossessed by the First National Bank of Southwestern Michigan.

He added that Rampart still has two vehicles stationed at new locations in the Fidelity building, Benton Harbor, and at the corner of Pipestone road and Napier avenue, Benton township.

The telephone number for emergency service is still the same, Reed said. Rampart has four full-time employees and one part-time worker.

In February of this year Rampart closed down, but reopened about a month later under new management. The main problem at that time was a $5,000 debt owed to a service station. Reed said the debt is still "being worked on."

INVESTORS' GUIDE

P-E Ratio Is No
Sure-Fire Formula

By SAM SHULSKY
Q. I understand that when one divides the price of a stock by its earnings per share one arrives at the p-e ratio; also, that this ratio changes as market price and earnings change. Is there a desirable level for this ratio? What range? One stock I was looking at suddenly soared from a p-e ratio of 4 to 127. Must be an error.

A. You are correct in your understanding of how one arrives at a p-e ratio. But once you begin seeking a fool-proof formula for a p-e road to riches you make the common mistake of assuming that any set of formulas can guide one to stock market success. If there were such a formula, we could all turn our money over to a computer and go fishing.

P-e ratios are — as you indicate — determined by dividing the market price of a stock by its annual earnings per share. Thus a $50 stock earning $4 per share has a p-e ratio of 12 1/2. But — a high p-e ratio for one stock may be a low ratio for another and vice versa. Furthermore, a p-e ratios soar during months of market bullishness and fall to what later proves to have been unreasonably low levels when many investors declare: "The stock market? Phooey. I'm not going there any more."

If you look back over the records of many blue chip stocks you will find that in "good" market times they sell at for example 20 or 30 times earnings. When the market goes into a slump, the ratio can fall to 10 and even lower.

So before you let the p-e ratio do your walking through the stock market list you must determine whether the stock you are looking at, historically has enjoyed a high ratio (because of its long-term record for improved earnings and dividends) and whether the stock market you are looking at is in a rising or falling phase.

As to that sensational jump in p-e ratio: that was no typographical error. This low-priced stock sold at around $6 at a time when the last 12-month earning per share was recorded as $1.50 a share. The stock then moved up to near 9 — fueled by the early 1975 general market advance, all the while earnings were falling. In fact, the last 12-month income per share was recently given at only 7 cents a share. If you divide 8 1/2 by 7 cents you'll come out with a p-e ratio of about 127.

So much for p-e ratios as the solid determinant of equity investment.

Berry
Bids Up
$1-$1.50

Strawberry prices jumped $1 to $1.50 on the Benton Harbor market Wednesday, as buyers scrambled madly to fill orders from a supply of about 5,000 crates.

The better grade of berries in 16-quart crates moved from $9.50-$10.50, with most transactions closed between $9.50 and $10. Small to medium size and ripe stock went for $8.50-$9, with an occasional lot up to $9.15-$9.25.

Eight-quart flats of good size and quality were $5-$5.50, few up to $5.60.

Strawberry receipts included 4,321 crates and 1,371 flats, for a total of 5,047 crate equivalents. Zucchini squash in 8-qt. cartons went at $1.75-$2, mostly the higher figure, and a few yellow straightneck brought $2. Squash supplies amounted to 53 cartons.

One lot of gooseberries in 12-pt. flats took $4.50.

Nine day buyers were on hand, and 86 grower loads were checked through the gates.

Board

BERRIEN SPRINGS — A new three-member board that will direct operation of the Regional Educational Media Center XI for Berrien, Van Buren and Cass county schools organized and elected officers here Tuesday night.

Lawrence Peachey of Eau Claire, Berrien's representative on the new board, was elected president, and Raymond Sreboth, Berrien Intermediate district superintendent, was appointed secretary. Members of the board, with Peachey, are Janet Pendergrass from the Cass county Intermediate district, and Edwin Buys from the Van Buren Intermediate district.

The three-member board replaces a 15-member board that has directed the Region 11 center for the past several years.

The center provides educational aids and devices to 38 public and parochial systems in the three counties. According to Sreboth, the center has a collection of 1,624 films, 119 filmstrips, 201 multi-media kits, 215 records, and numerous charts, maps and globes, all of which are available for loan to member schools. A van provides twice-a-week delivery to the schools.

In addition to electing officers, the new board approved operating policies, approved a proposed budget of $141,385 for 1975-76, and appointed a 38-member advisory council. The council is comprised of representatives of each of the public and parochial systems served by REMC XI, as the center is known.

The program is supported by special funds from the State Aid act, by federal funds from the National Defense Education act and local school membership fees.

Ruth Fitzgerald is director of the center, and the Berrien Intermediate board acts as fiscal agent for the program.

COMPUTERIZED CHECKOUT CONTROVERSY

Have you been exposed as yet to the new computer-assisted checkout system, now being tested in selected supermarkets across the U.S.? It's being highly praised by the industry as a major innovation which will speed up checkout lines, virtually eliminate errors in price ring-ups, provide us with detailed sales receipts, slash labor costs, maintain inventory records, etc.

Yet, it also is arousing furious controversy — and for what seem mystifying reasons, is alarming consumer activists, labor unions, a wide range of state and congressional legislators.

Why? To understand the issues, you must consider how the computerized checkout works:

A growing number of grocery products are marked with a 12-digit code, referred to as the Universal Product Code. This mark — a rectangle of thick and thin bars — identifies the manufacturer and the item. At the supermarkets where the system is being tested, there is an electronic cash register at each checkout lane.

The register is hooked up to a computer and equipped with a laser-beam scanner. As you unload your marketbasket, the clerk slides each of your purchases over the scanner. It reads the product's code, sends the information to the central computer — and within seconds, the item's price is flashed on to the register's viewing system and is printed on the register tape.

There's no doubt about it — this would bring us faster, more efficient service. But something is missing and it's crucial.

For what the system also would lead to is eventual elimination of visible pricing from almost all grocery store items.

"We have fought for years to improve consumer information about unit costs, content, weight, ingredients and shelf life," explains Carol Tucker Foreman, executive director of the Consumer Federation of America. "Now we must prevent the loss of the most basic of all information — a clearly marked cost on the product."

The technological advance is not disputed, add several state legislators and members of Congress. But also concerned about the removing of prices from individual products, they have introduced bills that would require all products ranging from a can of beans to a carton of milk to be plainly marked with a price.

And although even the few stores that have removed individual price markings have retained shelf price stickers, some consumer advocates say these tags are not enough. With merely those markings, shoppers cannot compare the cost of canned fruit with a similar frozen or fresh version, for instance. And once at home, they cannot compare this week's price of a can of soup with last week's price — unless they have kept their detailed receipts.

Critics of the new computerized system point out that products tend to "drift" from their proper shelves because shoppers change their minds and replace a package of cake mix, say, among cereal products.

Individually marked items are essential if shoppers are to find the best values without going through

TV SPONSORS STILL NOT READY TO BUY WFL

By JAY SHARBUTT
AP Television Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — As far as TV coverage is concerned, players in the new, reorganized World Football League may be all dressed up with no place to show when the WFL's second year of play starts on July 5.

Eddie Einhorn, whose TVS Television Network aired games of the old WFL last season, calls this year's model "a tough sell" and says "it's very unlikely right now that we'll be involved with it at all."

And a WFL spokesman says talks with the Hughes Sports Network have produced "the same general response — that it's too tough to sell" to sponsors following the league's well-publicized disarray last season.

But he says other options remain including the purchase of some air time by the WFL, itself, an option he concedes might be far too costly for a league which insists it isn't trying to go for broke this year.

The new WFL has the same name as the old. But it's a legally different outfit, raised from the ashes of last season when $20 million was lost, paydays were missed and considerable uncertainty prevailed.

Hopes were high in the old 12-team league when its first pre-season game was televised in mid-July by Einhorn's TVS network, which he says paid more than $1 million for first-season rights to 23 WFL games.

The sum was a bit less than the approximately $60 million the CBS, ABC and NBC networks will pay the National Football League this year, but you gotta start somewhere, as the saying goes.

Einhorn says widespread interest in the new league in 1974 greatly helped him line up sponsors and get the games aired on more than 100 markets.

"It wasn't tough to sell, and with all that publicity we sold very well," he recalled. "We were in the black for the season before it began. However, once it started, we didn't sell anything additional and didn't make any substantial money either for ourselves or them."

He blamed this on the many woes subsequently afflicting the league.

"It was the credibility factor," he said. "People didn't want to touch it with a 10-foot pole."

In April, Chris Hemminger, head of the new 11-team WFL, admitted its opening year was the "biggest sports disaster in history" and said it was imperative the new WFL have both stability and credibility.

Einhorn agrees that's the key to sponsored TV coverage.

He says teams in the reorganized WFL "are going to have to get their credibility back by playing a little first. If they get through half the season, then I think we can sell the second half."

"If they want to underwrite it, put up the money to put the game on TV, we'd be interested. But I don't know that they're ready to do that and time is short. So I'm just assuming that we're not going to be involved at all."

The WFL's opening game July 5 is a pre-season joust between San Antonio and Southern California. Regular play starts July 26 and ends Jan. 11 with the World Bowl championships.

Will any of this be on the tube?

"I would think," says the WFL spokesman, "we'd have a definite statement by the end of this week whether we'll be on TV this year."

FLOWERING GIANT: A giant Catalpa tree at Ed Schmeichel home, 3437 Cleveland avenue, St. Joseph township, passes full bloom stage and showers literally thousands of its big white blossoms to the ground. Schmeichel uses lawn vacuum attachment on garden tractor to clear faded blooms off grass. His Catalpa towers approximately 75 feet in air and trunk is about four feet in diameter. Long seed pods that grow from the blooms and litter the lawn in fall are reason these once popular "flowering trees" are seldom planted today. (Staff photos)

CLOSEUP: Here's closeup of a few of large flower clusters that cover tree.

Muskegon Paper Makes Two Editorial Changes

MUSKEGON, Mich. (AP) — Robert C. Herrick, editor of The Muskegon Chronicle since 1959, has been named executive editor today and Ralph M. May, managing editor since

Herrick will continue to be responsible for the editorial page and editorials until his normal retirement at the end of 1975.

May will assume responsibility for other phases of the news operation, including personnel and budgeting.

He will also supervise the installation of video display terminals in the news room as another step in the continuing process of introducing the latest electronic typesetting methods.

The personnel changes were announced by James P. Brown, western regional director of Booth Newspapers, Inc. which owns the Chronicle and seven other Michigan daily newspapers and Parade Magazine.

Herrick, 64, and May, 47, are both veteran newsmen. Each came to Muskegon from the Flint Journal where Herrick was city editor until 1959 and May was state editor until last year.

The two men have worked closely together for the past eight months to acquaint May with the Muskegon area and bring about an orderly change in management.
